SIX SHOTS FIRED BY STUDENT.

Warsaw, Poland, June 7.—(AP)—The Soviet minister to Poland, M. Volkoff, was assassinated at the Warsaw Central railway station today by Boris Kowarda, a young Russian student.

(M. Volkoff is declared by The London Evening News to have been "Pierre Volkoff," who, the paper says, signed the death warrant of Czar Nicholas and the Russian imperial family.)

The minister had gone to the station to meet A. P. Rosenzweig, former charge d'affaires in London, en route to Moscow after leaving London because of the recent breaking of diplomatic relations between England and the Soviet.

During the train stop M. Volkoff and Rosenzweig had coffee and then walked up and down the platform. Young Kowarda approached and, drawing a revolver, fired six shots.

Drew His Pistol. Although mortally wounded in the breast, M. Volkoff drew his own pistol, but collapsed before he could use it.

The assassin, a 19-year-old student in Vilna high school, surrendered his revolver, saying: "I killed Volkoff."

His wife and Foreign Minister Zaleski, of Poland, arrived before the end.

After the minister's death, M. Rosenzweig declared he had been informed in Berlin that there was an anti-Soviet club in Warsaw and that there was danger of an attempt on his life.

The assassin, who is the son of a former Russian employee living in Vilna, stated that he had decided months ago to kill M. Volkoff.

POLISH PRESIDENT VISITS SOVIET EMBASSY.

Warsaw, June 7.—(United News)—President Pilsudski immediately visited the Russian legation here, following the assassination of Minister Volkoff, chief of the Soviet diplomatic mission.

Special police measures were taken to guard the Soviet representatives and the Russian train headquarters.

Warsaw was seething with excitement after the assassination, which occurred at the railway station as Volkoff arrived to greet A. P. Rosenzweig.

Robbery Nets $37; Penalty Life in Prison

New York Law Requires Heavy Sentence for Crime "While Drunk."

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

New York, June 7.—Joseph Larney, son of former Alderman Patrick Larney, was sentenced by County Judge Taylor, in Brooklyn today to serve the remainder of his life in prison.

Young Larney is 25 years old and unmarried. He stood trial recently on an indictment for first degree robbery as a second offender. He was found guilty and under the Baumes habitual criminal law the life sentence was mandatory although Judge Taylor admitted in passing sentence that the robbery of a restaurant last March 19, which resulted in the indictment, was the outgrowth of "a drunken escapade." It netted $37.

James Quigley, 20, arrested with Larney, was allowed to plead guilty to robbery, third degree, as a first offender. He was sentenced to serve three months in the workhouse.

The pair used no weapons and had none when arrested. Before Larney went to trial he was examined by alienists who characterized him "a man in years with the mentality of a boy 14 years of age." He had been in frequent brushes with the police and had already served one term for robbery.

$1,000,000 CHECKS OF FORD DO NOT PREVENT SENTENCE

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Chicago, Ill., June 8.—Oscar Stran, orating in his best soap-box manner to a crowd at Desplains and Madison streets, was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was backed by Henry Ford. To prove his claim, he showed Judge Borelli "checks" totaling $1,078,000. Most of them were written on tissue paper with a lead pencil and the judge was not deeply impressed. He slapped a fine of $25 on Stran and suggested he cash one of the smaller checks. Stran, however, made no attempt to do so and in lieu of the $25 was sent to the work house where he can create to a pile of stone as he breaks it up.

COAST GUARDSMAN FIRES 100 ROUNDS INTO OHIO CROWDS

Deputies Board Rum Chaser, Bring Man Down Before He Gets to Machine Gun.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Painesville, Ohio, June 7.—(AP)—John S. Sadowski, a Coast Guard cutterman, boarded a government rum chaser at Fairport this afternoon and proceeded to shoot up the harbor with nearly 100 rounds of ammunition. He was described by officers as apparently intoxicated.

Sadowski sent 200 persons scurrying to shelter but none of his random shots inflicted any injuries. After the first hundred rounds of ammunition had been exhausted the guardsman turned his attention to a machine gun about the harbor and was getting ready to train the gun on the crowd when three Lake county officers overpowered him.

Sadowski was taken to the county jail. No charge had been placed against him tonight.

Fishermen going about their daily tasks and women and children out for a walk fairly rowd the harbor when Sadowski returned here after a day's leave, climbed aboard the rum chaser. In a locker he found three rifles. He began firing with one of them.

Splinters flew up from the pier as the bullets crashed in the water near the water's edge. Before Sadowski had a chance to fire a second volley the crowd was under cover.

The distance was the coast guard station. Sadowski pumped 30 or 40 shots into it and then fired into the harbor tug Ohio.

When Sheriff Rasmussen and Deputy E. H. Lamos and George Deval arrived in answer to a summons Sadowski took a few shots at them and started for the machine gun when they nipped upon him. He had been a member of the coast guard crew at Fairport since May 4. Prior to that time he was in the navy. His home is in Cleveland.

STORES TO REPLACE MAJESTIC HOTEL

Eight-Story Structure To Be Demolished to Make Way for Commercial Building.

The Majestic office building, formerly the Majestic hotel, will soon be razed to make way for construction of a modern two-story commercial structure, containing a series of stores, it was disclosed Tuesday in an announcement by officials of the Majestic corporation, of which J. Bulow Campbell, prominent local coal merchant and capitalist, is president.

The old hotel structure, having a valuation of approximately $250,000 for the building alone, and rising eight stories in the air above a basement, will be demolished shortly, as a step in the building progress of Atlanta, officials of the corporation stated. The site of the property, located on Peachtree street between Ellis and Cain streets, has a frontage of 100 feet facing the new Davidson-Paxon street, and a depth of 197 feet on one side and 297 feet on the other side. The irregularity of the depth is due to combination of two lots.

When the old Majestic hotel was built some 30 years ago it was considered well out of the business district. Today it is in the heart of Atlanta's commercial district, and the property value is said to have increased from an "inconsequential sum" to between $150,000 and $1,000,000.

When originally constructed by Guide & Walker, builders, for the proprietors, consisting of Mrs. Ralph Van Landingham, members of the Harwood family and Samuel Barnett, it was intended for a high-class residential apartment hotel, the largest one of its kind in this section at the time. Some years later it was leased by J. Lee Barnes, well-known hotel operator, now of St. Petersburg, Fla., who converted it into a commercial as well as residential hotel.

About six years ago it was transformed to an office building and used by the federal government. Later the building was remodeled and a commercial structure containing five shops erected along the Peachtree frontage. These shops are to be entirely reconstructed and extended the full length of the lot after the hotel structure is wrecked. A large lease on one of these stores has been made by the S. and W. Cafeteria, of Charlotte, N. C., it was stated. The firm operates a chain of cafeterias in the south.

A peculiarity of the old Majestic site is the fact that it is the highest parcel of land in downtown Atlanta and believed by many to be the highest point in the city. It is supposed to be situated on the ton of the "great territorial divide" between the regions drained by the waters flowing into the Atlantic ocean.

The Majestic corporation has acquired the lease on the property with option to buy.

MISSISSIPPI'S RISE TO FLOOD FARM CROPS

REPLANTED LANDS WILL BE COVERED

Perfection of Relief Organizations Will Minimize Loss of Life; Hopes of Farmers Blasted.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, June 7.—(United News).—The Mississippi valley from Cairo, Ill., to Memphis, Tenn., will be reflooded this week with waters pouring down from the Missouri river, Major D. H. Connolly, district engineer at Memphis, advised the war department late today.

Between 50 and 75 per cent of lands, drained of the recent floods and replanted, will be covered, Connolly predicted.

The flood crest will reach Cairo June 10 at a height of 50 feet, the army engineer estimated. It will strike New Madrid, Mo., the following day with a stage of 39.5 feet; Memphis, June 14, with 39.5 feet; and Helena, Ark., June 15, with 40 feet of water.

Relief organizations have been perfecting so that danger of loss of life will be minimized, Connolly believes, but the new flood will blast rehabilitation hopes of thousands of farmers.

Below Helena, Ark., the waters will probably recover much of area claimed by the previous flood as crevasses made in the levees have not been repaired.

New Orleans will be in no danger, engineers believe, as the spillway created below the city at Poydras will provide ample protection from any great volume of water.

Major John H. C. Lee, district engineer at Vicksburg, reported backwater in his district started rising yesterday due to recent rises in the Mississippi, Arkansas and White rivers.

A war department bulletin, based on Connolly's report said: "Businesses will be reflooded about as follows: St. John's bayou basin, 75 per cent of land underwater; St. Francis basin, 80 per cent of land underwater; Rock Island railroad between Memphis and Madison (about half of all the area in the basin before uncovered); White River basin, 70 per cent of area south of Helena and Clarendon (about half the area uncovered)."

The crevasses in the front line levees in the first and second districts have never been unwatered and are still deep with swift current. Emergency repairs at Clarendon and on the new Madrid-Sikeston ridge levee

Savannah, Ga., June 7.—(AP)—Creation of a new federal department with a cabinet member in charge for administration of highway affairs, is asked in a resolution presented late today to the convention of the United States Good Roads association and referred to committee. Action probably will be taken tomorrow.

150,000 HOCHS GREEN PLANE AT COAL'S END

SAILS ABOVE CITY BEFORE LANDING

Excitement Reaches High Pitch When Sirens Announce Sighting of Bellanca Plane.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Berlin, June 7.—(AP)—Conveyed by 15 German planes, the deafening roar of whose motors could hardly compete with the hoarse "hochs" of the 150,000 enthusiastic spectators gathered in and around Tempelhof airport, Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine finally descended upon Berlin in their Bellanca plane this evening.

It was a real welcome for the delayed airmen. The fact that the people of Berlin suffered a great disappointment Monday morning, when the plane was expected, had nothing to do with the greeting extended to the Americans when they arrived.

Crowds many times as large as had made the pilgrimage to the field the previous day spent all afternoon in picnic fashion and spirit scanning the sky for a glimpse of the Columbia. The watchers crowded the airfield to its capacity and lined up many rows deep along the fence enclosing the immense field.

Yesterday's anxiety gave place to happy confidence. The drowsy lassitude of those who had kept vigil all night turned to joyousness, and expressions gave way to laughing faces.

Gaudy Band Arrives. A touch of carnival was added when about 5 o'clock a brass band, in gaudy flaming red hussar uniforms, with gilded drapery, marched on to the grounds and played American and German airs alternately. As on the day before, Berlin's busiest and swiftest police were on duty keeping efficiency some times causing annoyance to guests, such as the staffs of the American embassy and consulate, foreign diplomats and higher officials of the German and Prussian governments by frequent scrutiny of their admission cards.

Excitement reached fever pitch when the loud siren which announces the arrival and departure of the air police on Tempelhof airport

WILKINS DECIDES TO ABANDON HOP ACROSS ARCTIC

(Special dispatch to The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Copyright, 1927, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Fairbanks, Alaska, June 7.—Captain Wilkins has decided to abandon for this season any further attempt to explore the arctic in search of undiscovered land.

He had even considered fitting the De Witt Evans-Wilkins plane to carry every possible ounce of gas, and then to fly alone, in another effort to reach Greenland from Point Barrow, but the extreme uncertainty of flying conditions in the arctic at this season, the difficulty of a take-off at Point Barrow when heavily loaded and the danger of flying alone over the arctic led to the abandonment of the idea.

Even a minor accident is likely to prove fatal in arctic flights if the flier is alone. Captain Wilkins does not consider danger if there is possible success in sight, and he would have set off unaccompanied had there been the least assurance of visibility in the arctic during a long flight.

SINCLAIR SPEEDS TO BOSTON

CLERK WHO SOLD BOOK ARRESTED

As Novel "Oil" Is Barred

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

New York, June 7.—(By United News).—Upton Sinclair, probably the only living American who would rush across the continent to get himself arrested as a matter of principle, is on his way.

The novelist stopped out from his home in Long Beach, Calif., to Boston, where he wants to substitute himself for a bookseller's clerk seized by the police for selling a copy of Sinclair's new novel, "Oil."

Sinclair's plans—other than to save himself—are not altogether clear, but it seemed evident that there is going to be some commotion in Boston and censorship circles in Boston since Henry Menckens peddled a copy of the banned "American Mercury" on the common a year ago last April.

'LINDY' WELCOME ASSUMES COLOR OF INAUGURATION

Railroads To Run Special Trains for Excursionists Saturday When Capital Greets Hero.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, June 7.—(United News).—Clara A. Lindbergh's homecoming Saturday is assuming the proportions of a presidential inauguration.

Railroads have scheduled excursions from Pennsylvania, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, New York, Delaware and Maryland. Automobiles and interurbans will bring thousands more.

Lindbergh will find a festooned city when he docks at the navy yard. River craft will be flying colorful pennants. Pennsylvania avenue will be gay with flags and bunting.

Government departments will close at noon, permitting thousands of employees to join in the celebration. Banks and business houses have been requested to close.

Commander A. C. Reed, commander of the naval air station at Hampton Roads, has been ordered here for the reception. He led the navy's trans-Atlantic flight in 1919 when the ocean was first crossed in jet.

Chairman John Hays Hammond of the option committee has insisted upon arrangements that will permit Lindbergh's mother to be the first of all to greet him at the pier. All other ceremony will be compelled to wait upon this choicest greeting of all.

Twelve senators and 12 members of the house of representatives have been designated to join the reception committee.

The senators named by Vice President Dawes are Curtis, of Kansas, republican leader; Robinson, of Arkansas, democratic leader; Schull and Shipstead, of Minnesota; Reed and Hawes, of Missouri; Warren, of Wyoming; Swanson, of Virginia; Hale, of Maine; Copeland, of New York; Harrison, of Mississippi, and Reed, of Pennsylvania.

Four boyhood friends of Lindbergh from Twin Falls, Minnesota, will be given prominent places in the reception stands.

Besides John Hays Hammond, chairman of the reception committee, those who will meet Lindbergh at the docks include: Secretary of War Duggan, Secretary of the Navy Tibbels, Postmaster General New, Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state; Representative Fish, of New York; and Nathan Miller and Charles Lockwood.

There will be but two speeches at the Washington Monument, one by President Coolidge and a brief reply by Lindbergh.

Girl Drowns Trying to Save Her Brother, 3

Chicago Tot Leaps Into Four Feet of Water of Lake.

Chicago, June 7.—(AP)—A girl seven years old was drowned here tonight in a heroic but unsuccessful attempt to save from drowning her brother, three years old, entrusted to her care.

Nola Conklin, the little heroine, jumped into Lake Michigan when her brother, George, 3, slipped and fell into four feet of water while playing along the shore with another brother, Fred, 5.

The girl succeeded in reaching her baby brother and clasped him in her arms while Fred ran for help. Ten minutes later policemen brought the two little bodies to the surface on the same grappling hook, the little boy's form still clasped protectively in his sister's arms.

They were taken to a hospital, where for hours vain attempts were made to resuscitate them.

NEGROES TESTIFY IN KING'S FAVOR

Workers Say They Were Not Mistreated by Lexington Physician—Government Rests Case.

Athens, Ga., June 7.—(AP)—Negroes employed in a sawmill on the farm formerly operated by Dr. W. R. King in Oglethorpe county were given good food, bunked in a camp house and were not mistreated, defense witnesses testified today at the peonage trial of Dr. King in United States district court.

Witnesses for the government had testified previously that negroes were staked while being transported from the stockade in Atlanta to the sawmill, were whipped with buggy traces, made to sleep on a pile of hay and given little food.

The government rested its case suddenly at noon without placing on the stand James Felton, a negro who formerly worked on the farm and whose statements to officers in Danville, Va., about alleged peonage conditions on the farm, preceded the opening of the trial here yesterday. Felton was here, but District Attorney B. S. Deaver made no announcement as to why he was not placed on the stand or whether he would be used in rebuttal.

Government Testimony Refuted.

Government witnesses testified that five negroes who had been taken to the sawmill from the Atlanta stockade and who escaped were whipped and put in jail, but W. G. Kell, who said that he and Lewis Andrews refuted the mill from Dr. King, refuted this testimony.

Kell said that the negroes had disappeared from the camp the night after they were taken there, and at the same time there also disappeared saw: tools and food supplies. It was because of the theft of these articles that the negroes were followed, he said, and when overtaken, Raymond Tyler, one of the government witnesses, drew a wrench. Dr. King, a

PRODUCER ARRIVES FROM GREENVILLE ON SOUTHERN R. R.

Sargent Declares That Time Served in Hospital Will Not Be Deducted From Year's Sentence.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Washington, June 7.—(AP)—Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, sentenced to Atlanta penitentiary for perjury, who became ill in Greenville, S. C., today was ordered taken to Atlanta to begin serving his sentence.

Attorney General Sargent, in announcing that Carroll would be taken to the prison tonight or tomorrow, indicated late today that there was nothing in the Carroll case that would justify its being referred to President Coolidge for action on a petition for executive clemency filed some time ago.

Carroll has been in a Greenville hospital for more than a month, and decision of the department of justice to deny him clemency at this time was based on a report made by two examining officials.

The physicians sent by the department of justice to investigate reports that Carroll was critically ill reported that he was suffering from no illness and "that there is nothing the matter with him," the attorney general said.

The attorney general said that Carroll's sentence had not begun but would date from the time he is admitted to the prison.

Carroll was sentenced in New York to serve one year and one day in the Atlanta prison as a result of his conviction.

Carroll was sentenced in New York to serve one year and one day in the Atlanta prison as a result of his conviction.

Carroll Arrives at Early Hour

Earl Carroll, former New York revue producer, arrived in Atlanta at 5:25 o'clock this morning to begin his sentence of a year and a day in the federal penitentiary, imposed pursuant to a conviction for perjury.

Carroll was accompanied by Henry Cunningham, United States deputy marshal, of New York city, who has guarded the convicted man since he became ill in Greenville.

The pair left the South Carolina city at 1:25 a. m., arriving at the Terminal station at 5:25. Immediately Carroll was taken to the prison. Warden J. W. Snook was on hand to greet him when he arrived.

Prison officials late Tuesday night requested Harry G. Poole, local undertaker, to hold an ambulance in readiness for a possible call to the Terminal station this morning, should Carroll's condition require this means of transportation to the penitentiary.

BLIND CONVENTION IN SESSION HERE

That the blind are not objects of pity, that they do not wish to be considered a burden, but that all they want is the opportunity to show their ability to be self-supporting, declared the Rev. Witherspoon Dodge, pastor of the Central Congregational church, Tuesday afternoon in an address before the Georgia Association of Workers for the Blind, which began a two-day session at the Baptist tabernacle. The address of welcome by Mayor J. N. Ragdale, hearing of reports, a talk on the value and necessity of sight saving glasses in schools, by Dr. Grady Clay, eye specialist of Atlanta, and a picnic to Hunter's park at Roswell and Piedmont roads in the evening were other features of the opening day.

Between 50 and 60 members of the association from all parts of the state gathered at 10 o'clock when Mayor Ragdale welcomed them to the city. The speech of the mayor was followed by reports of the executive board and routine matters.

The report from the state library committee on circulating libraries for the blind showed that there are twice as many books in circulation among the blind at this time as last year. In view of the fact that the association is committed to a program of workshop activity and that all available funds are needed to meet that purpose, it was decided not to expend funds on new books or anything else at this time.

At the morning session today Mrs. Ellen Beech Mack, executive secretary of the South Carolina Association for the Blind, will speak on fiber work shop. The afternoon session, which begins at 2 o'clock, will be featured by a detailed report concerning the blind and workshop conditions in the United States.

This report will be tendered by a committee appointed by the association and which has been working for one year on the subject.

The association is anxious that the public attend the afternoon session Wednesday. The meetings are being presided over by Paul Donohoe, president of the association.

T. P. A. DELEGATES GATHER TO LEAVE FOR DENVER MEET

Scores of delegates from all over the state began arriving in Atlanta Tuesday night to take the Travelers Protective association special tonight for Denver, Colo., the scene of the 30th annual convention of the association since its organization in that Colorado city. The convention will be held June 13-15.

Members of local posts "B" and "O-P" will entertain the visitors today and late this afternoon will entertain for the annual gathering. More than 75 are expected in the party. The Georgia delegation will stop off at St. Louis, national headquarters of the association; the Rocky Mountain National park, Estes park, and will visit other places of interest.

The Georgia delegation will push L. O. Surles, president of post "O-P" and state publicity chairman, for the post as chairman of the national publicity committee. He was indorsed unanimously at the state convention held last month at Albany. Robert F. Pennington, president of post "D," Atlanta, will be in the party and will be one of the most ardent supporters of Mr. Surles, he said Tuesday night.

OPERA STARS SING AT ROTARY LUNCH

Principals of the light opera company soon to open at the Erlanger theater, featured the luncheon program of the Atlanta Rotary club, Tuesday, at the Capital City club, rendering a number of pleasing selections. Chaire Madette, new prima donna from New York; Louis Templeman, baritone, and Charles Berton, musical director and accompanist, carried the honors with a series of songs. Howard Candler, head of the Municipal Opera company, presented the artists to his fellow Rotarians. A bouquet of roses was given to Miss Madette.

Another outstanding feature of the occasion was a "framed" broadcast from Ostend, Belgium, where the international convention of Rotarians is now in session. The meeting was presided over by Robert L. Foreman, president.

HOMER WATKINS BACK AS ATLANTA LAWYER

Colonel Homer Watkins, distinguished veteran of the world war, announces his return from Cedar town, Ga., to Atlanta.

HOMER WATKINS.

Atlanta, having opened offices at 708 Fourth National Bank building, for the general practice of law.

He is well known in Atlanta having lived here before the beginning of the world war. He entered the service as a major, being at Camp Gordon with the 82nd division, and carrying a battalion of that division to France.

Colonel Watkins served with great gallantry in the Argonne, where he was wounded, and received promotion to a lieutenant-colonel.

Upon his return to Georgia he located in his home town, Cedar town, in the practice of law, but his wide acquaintance and former residence in Atlanta has induced him to return here where he believes he has a larger field. Colonel Watkins is a brother of Edgar Watkins, prominent member of the Atlanta bar, and he has an extensive acquaintance not only in Atlanta but throughout the state.

Commission Orders All Wrecks Reported Regardless of Injury

With a view of further prevention against accidents on public carriers, the Georgia public service commission Tuesday made public a ruling which will require all railroads and street car lines to immediately notify the commission of any wreck, whether personal injury occurred or not.

The new rule supersedes a rule that has been on the books of the commission since 1910, and which required a report to be made in the case of accidents in which personal injury resulted. It was pointed out at the office of the commission that by having a report immediately on every wreck of any type the commission will be able to conduct a prompt investigation and determine if the cause is faulty roadbed or poor equipment.

A recent wreck in south Georgia, in which 16 freight cars were smashed, with no personal injury resulting, and on which no report was made, was the immediate cause of the new order.

SAFETY COUNCIL TO GIVE POSTER PRIZES TODAY

Definite plans for the inter-fleet truck drivers' safety contest, which will be held under the auspices of the Atlanta safety council, were perfected at a meeting of the council Tuesday afternoon at the chamber of commerce. The plans will be submitted for final approval of the council at a monthly meeting today at 12:30 o'clock at the Ansley hotel, according to A. T. Belle Isle, chairman of the committee.

Presentation of prizes in the safety poster contest will be one of the outstanding features at today's meeting, according to the "Safety Bulletin." Atlanta showed a decrease of 15.4 per cent for the month of May, 1927, as compared with the same month in 1926, in the number of motor vehicle accidents, according to a report of the council.

PACIFIC COAST PASTOR ARRIVES FOR CAMPAIGN

Rev. George W. Davis, noted California pastor, will arrive in Atlanta today to open a five-day evangelistic campaign at the Gospel tabernacle on Capitol avenue. Tonight at 7:30 the evangelist will preach. Meetings will continue through next Sunday.

Dr. Davis comes to Atlanta from Oxnard, where he was a principal speaker at the national Missionary Alliance convention. He is said to be one of the most noted pulpits orators of the Pacific coast.

At Pasadena, Cal., where the minister resides, he is pastor of a large tabernacle congregation. He has also served large churches in Los Angeles, Long Beach and other California cities.

A special musical program under the direction of Grady Mangham, chorister at the Gospel tabernacle, will be a feature of the campaign.

DELEGATES CHOSEN FOR W. M. U. MEETING

Delegates from the Second Baptist church, who will attend Woman's Missionary union convention at Bessie Tift college, in Forsyth, during the latter part of the week, were announced Tuesday as follows: Mrs. Hal F. Hentz, Mrs. W. F. Campbell and Mrs. L. A. Witherspoon. Selection was made at a recent meeting of the missionary and benevolent society at the church.

L. A. Witherspoon will have charge of the regular prayer service tonight at 7:45 o'clock, which follows the regular monthly meeting of the workers' council.

Have you tried the Atlanta Biltmore Barber Shop? Quiet, excellent service, and plenty of space to park your car. (adv.)

EASIER TO ATTAIN HEAVEN THAN HELL, SAYS CULPEPPER

"It is easier to go to heaven than it is to go to hell," said John B. Culpepper, Sr., in the final meeting at Mount Vernon Methodist church last evening.

Speaking to a large audience on "The Way of the Transgressor is Hard," Mr. Culpepper, who is dean of Southern Methodist evangelists, asked a committee to render a verdict as to whether or not he had made out his case at the close of the evening message. The decision was in the affirmative.

Tonight at 7:45 large delegations from the Center Street Methodist church and the Collins Memorial church are to attend and hear the evangelist, who is being assisted by his son, John B. Culpepper, Jr., of New Smyrna, Fla.

STATE EXPERIMENT FARM SHOWS PROFIT

The state experiment farm at Griffin made a net profit of $18,940 in its operations during the last 12 months, according to a report filed with Governor Clifford Walker Tuesday by Sam J. Slate, state auditor. The receipt of the farm amounted to $27,710, while disbursements amounted to $8,770, leaving a profit of $18,940, according to the report.

Receipts of the farm included sales of hogs, poultry, bedding, clothing and other supplies to the stricken area. Original estimates of the loss and damage were not exaggerated and the devastated condition in the seven counties chiefly affected is more extensive than at first reported, according to word received by the Red Cross here.

The greatest need at present is for money for local buying of commodities needed immediately. The general sanitary conditions are well in hand except at Wayland in the Big Sandy valley. Mr. Kilpatrick reported.

Word reaching Lexington today indicated that isolated sections of the main line of the L. & N. are in dire need of immediate relief and the Red Cross has directed its workers to penetrate into the mountains to aid the stricken.

MULVIHILL INDICTED IN EXPRESS SLAYING

R. W. Mulvihill, clerk of the South-eastern Express company, was indicted Tuesday by the Fulton county grand jury on a charge of murder in connection with the fatal stabbing on May 30 of F. W. Collins, a fellow employee, following a lunch-hour quarrel.

Collins died at the Georgia Baptist hospital last Tuesday night and Mulvihill was arrested six hours after his death by city detectives. He is being held without bond in Fulton tower pending trial.

CIVITANS TO SUPPORT ALTO HOSPITAL NEED

Urging a more liberal appropriation for the tuberculosis sanitarium at Alto, Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, commissioner of health for Georgia, in the principal address before the Atlanta Civitan club's weekly luncheon Tuesday at the Atlanta Athletic club, declared that Georgia spends less per capita to improve health conditions than any other state in the union.

Dr. Abercrombie emphasized the need for more funds to operate the Alto sanitarium efficiently. For two years the state turned over the tobacco tax to the institution, during which time a large new building was constructed, having a capacity of 240 patients, the health commissioner stated. Upon completion of the building the tobacco tax was diverted to other purposes and the institution's annual appropriation cut to $100,000. At present the sanitarium is able to care for only 100 tubercular patients in spite of the fact that many times this number of applications have been received.

Upon completion of the commissioner's talk the club voted to support the movement to have the sanitarium's annual appropriation increased to $250,000 by act of the state legislature this summer as part of the national Civitan program in fighting tuberculosis. Joel Hunter was given charge of this work. The club also decided to send at least one delegate to the state health meeting in Macon on June 9.

A musical program was provided by Signor E. Volpi and three of his pupils, Miss Laura Reeves, Miss Marie Reeves and Miss Betty Burdette. Earl D. Knight, first vice president, presided in absence of President Graham West, who is attending a comptrollers' convention in Canada.

LINDBERGH FLIGHT ON FOURTH PROGRAM

Lakewood Park's lake will represent the Atlantic ocean for a while on the evening of July Fourth, when a fireworks replica of Captain Lindbergh's "New York to Paris" flight will be presented with fireworks. Manager Oscar Mills of the park announced Tuesday.

Across from the grandstand, a giant "Statue of Liberty" will be done in fire. As it glows in bright colored fire, another spectacle will loom up, across the lake—a replica of the Eiffel tower. A cascade of shots at "New York" will announce "Lindy's" departure, and a tiny airplane will be seen flying across the lake, bringing up at the Eiffel tower.

Continued cool, cloudy weather, similar to that of Tuesday, is predicted for Atlantans today by C. F. von Herrmann, official local meteorologist. The temperatures today are not expected to vary materially from those of Tuesday when low and high marks of 63 and 78 respectively were recorded.

Although practically all of the day will be somewhat cloudy, there is little prospect for rain, the weather bureau stated. Rainfall during the last 24 hours measured only .05 of an inch and was hardly enough to be called a real shower. All of Georgia is badly in need of rain, according to reports from various parts of the state.

SERB-ALBANIAN BREAK ISN'T HELD SERIOUS IN LONDON

London, June 7.—(AP)—The situation between Jugoslavia and Albania, involving the breaking of diplomatic relations, is not regarded in Downing street as serious. Some officials believe the incident of the arrest of a member of the Jugoslavist legion staff in Albania has been seized upon as an opportunity to raise the whole question of the relations between Italy, Albania and Jugoslavia for discussion by the powers when the league of nations council convenes next Monday in Geneva.

MR. M'ADDOO'S ISSUE.

In the commencement address at Tusculum college, Greenville, Tenn., Tuesday former Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo practically announced his candidacy for the democratic nomination for president in 1928 as the Andrew Jackson of the ultra-dry issue.

This had been anticipated.

In an address in the middle west several weeks ago Mr. McAdoo declared that the federal government should conscript the constabularies of states to aid in dry law enforcement, and that it should show the United States army and navy behind the undertaking, as supplementary to the great army of federal enforcement now employed in the service.

He now declares prohibition to be the paramount national issue and is ready to throw the robes of Old Hickory around his own shoulders as the apostle of the cause.

Mr. McAdoo is right in his statement that neither party can escape this issue by dodging it.

The growing traffic in contraband beverages, the increase in drunkenness, the crime wave, the overcrowded alcoholic wards in hospitals, the increase in juvenile delinquency—all of these conditions that confront the country make it the issue. It is folly to adopt the ostrich policy of burying the head to hide the body. The issue must be met.

But it is not a "wet and dry" issue, as Mr. McAdoo would have us believe. There is no "wet" issue in this country. Even the bootleggers and the whisky rectifiers and the rum runners are the drier of the dry now. There is no saloon element—no self-respecting person wants the saloon.

The issue is whether or not there shall be such extreme summary statutes as vehicles for the 18th amendment as invite the illegal traffic and produce conditions such as exist in this nation today, and are known of all, or whether there shall be such reasonable moderations in such laws as to break up the great illegal whisky traffic and thereby promote sobriety, better morals and cleaner and more wholesome social conditions.

Whether or not the state shall surrender sovereign rights to the federal authorities and whether or not federal bayonet and state authority usurped in an attempt to do the impossible except as law shall yield to wisdom, justice and moderation, is the real issue evoked by Mr. McAdoo's position.

Possibly he may be right! If he is, then prepare for similar treatment, later on, of the 14th and 15th amendments.

SAFEGUARD DEPOSITORS!

The Georgia County Bankers' association meets in annual convention today at Macon.

It will probably make some recommendations to the legislature as to a revision of the banking laws, and especially as to safeguarding depositors.

As President Eugene R. Black, of the Atlanta Trust company, made plain before the recent Georgia Bankers' association, while the necessity for such revisions is imperative, the danger of radical legislation must be avoided.

What the state needs is a strengthening of the present laws along sound, conservative lines, and particularly a rigid amendment that will protect depositors from having the banks with which they deal looted from within, even if such looting are the results of the best of intentions.

This can be accomplished by a simple provision that officers, directors and stockholders of banks, whether large or small, shall be prohibited from becoming borrowing customers of such institutions with which they may be connected.

At the recent meeting of the Georgia Bankers' association Judge Charles H. Brand, of Athens, a member of congress, for many years interested in banking, and a member of the house banking and currency committee, urged that the Georgia laws be amended so that depositors shall be given first place in the preferred class of creditors, in the event of a bank's insolvency, instead of the fifth, and next to last place, as at present.

Depositors in any bank should feel that they would be given first preference in the event of a failure, and not merely clothed with the authority to draw out of the bank their own money in the event of a bank's continued solvency.

Economic conditions, of course, may arise that will embarrass a bank in spite of the rigidity of governing laws, but they are few, and it should be the obligation of the legislature to provide that a bank shall not fail, that is as far as it is humanly possible to do so.

In his address before the Georgia Bankers' association, Congressman Brand said:

"There is more suffering in Georgia on account of broken banks due to losses to depositors than any other one thing, and I think it is high time that the Georgia Bankers' association and this convention, which is composed of men of experience and a sense of justice and fairness, should get active and take some interest in behalf of the depositors. The situation calls for something more than passiveness or inaction on the part of the Georgia Bankers' association. The bankers of this state may as well meet the issue by proposing or supporting some constructive legislation which will afford protection to depositors. It would be almost a crime if the general assembly of this state at its next session does not do something to protect the depositors. I don't see how any banker or any member of the general assembly can afford to offer any opposition to the suggestion which I have made to you."

We may commend these remarks to the Country Bankers' association.

Constructive legislation is the antithesis of radical legislation, and while laws governing banks should not be burdensome or unfair, and should permit them to be of the greatest service, consistent with safety, the legislature in framing revisions, should be guided by the one outstanding fact that a bank is the legal custodian of trust funds, that such funds are sacred, that by the very nature of the trust they should be first preferred in event of emergency, and that the system of organizing banks for the sole purpose of giving inside combinations opportunities for using trust funds for private businesses and speculations must stop.

SPRIT OF THE GERMANS.

There appears to be no bounds to the general hospitality that the German people, of high and low estate alike, are showering upon the American aviators who conquered the ocean and landed in a German mudhole.

With Munich "stout," and fried eel they are made thoroughly "at home," and to feel that they are among friends, as they are.

While the Germans are less excitable, and less demonstrative than the French, they are no less warm hearted and cordial, even though only nine years ago every American aviator in Europe was charged with the exciting duty to clip the wings of every Boche who dared to fly across the lines into enemy territory.

Today the glad acclaim of the German hosts for the courage and the valor and the skill of their former enemies binds closer the tie of international friendship and peace—a peace that it is hoped may be forever enduring.

The spirit of the German people, as illustrated in the warmth of greetings, and in the general reception, to the intrepid aviators of the Columbia is most commendable and heartening.

It ought to serve as an object lesson to those who have not yet lived over the war of 1917-18.

WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Gypsies in Paris.

A procession of gypsies, 2,000 men, women and children with all manner and types of vehicles, hit the French capital the other day. They were on a tour that was started in 1921 and which so far covered nearly all Europe, except Russia and the Scandinavian countries. The Paris police had been warned of the approach of this army and named the gypsies were told that they would be escorted through the city and so on their way to continue their wandering life. The king of the gypsies, a man with a bristling mustache and a feather in his cap, demurred. He said he had promised his people to show them Paris, the most beautiful city on earth. And moreover, he wanted to pay his compliments to a monarch to the head of the French republic, M. Doumergue. He is told that the president was on a journey. But that reference to the most beautiful city on earth touched the heart of the prefect of police. The gypsies were allowed to proceed along the boulevards. At the Madeleine, groups of women said a little prayer. And despite the alienation of the gypsies, two of the collection boxes for the poor at the door had disappeared.

Least Bigoted Country.

"Two Vagabonds in Albania," a book in London is of timely interest because that country seems to have become the scene of clashing interests between Italy and Jugoslavia. The authors say that "Albania is the least bigoted religious community in the world. The Christians will attend Mohammedan worship. The Mohammedans go to the Christian church, and in some villages they wear the turban of the Muslims. At the same time, the Albanian must be held up as an example to the world of religious tolerance. It was not so largely an example of religious indifference. The Albanians are trying to create in Albania a national consciousness. The experiment is far from easy, for the Albanians, the broad mass of the whole structure, have no feeling of nationality, desiring nothing better than individual prosperity, no interference, and the freedom to emigrate their sons to America. Herein lies the paradox: It is a remarkable fact that the Albanian emigrant, who under the Turkish showed a passionate attachment to his own country, that very few of them would accept American citizenship, now that the country has been freed from Turkish rule. American citizenship is as soon as the papers can be made out."

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

TEN DOLLARS' WORTH OF HEALTH.

A dozen correspondents daily ask me this question: "What is the value of health?" I can tell them what it is worth if they will give me the value of health or life, to figure on.

In the first place, a health examination is no set system or procedure. The examination must be adapted to the individual requirements. An examination that would record the state of health of a boy of 15 would be entirely different from a woman 40 years old. Then, too, the privately sought periodic health examination must be conducted along the lines indicated by the physician, special trouble or difficulty, for almost invariably the individual who seeks such examination has some trouble which, in fact, leads him to try this way of getting at the cause and finding a proper remedy.

As nearly as I can determine from scattered reports, the cost of a health examination varies from $1.00 to $5.00. A straight physical examination of this kind, without any special tests of a technical nature, takes an average of 15 minutes and costs an average of $1.00.

If the examination, thoroughly made, leads to the conclusion that you are perfectly well without exceptions, then you have bought $10 worth of health. You came under examination because you were a little worried about something, a little doubtful about the state of your health. The worry or doubt is dispelled by the examination, or rather by the result or conclusion from the examination. For the removal of worry, the cost of a health examination is $1.00 to $5.00, or 18 or 20 cents of worth of health pamphlets and letters and things that private physicians seldom discuss. But this is a direct method is expensive. Somebody must pay for all the overhead and so on.

Not every private medical practitioner is competent to make health examinations. The younger physicians generally have been trained in this field; the older ones, and I am sure, have not. This is the best hint I can give to the reader in quest of a doctor equipped for this service.

The tests to be made upon the patient are not of a technical nature, but of a practical nature. The physician who might wish to engage in such practice has no accepted means of designating his interest. This is a sad commentary upon the backwardness of organized medicine in America. Too much old foginess and narrowness of view in our medical hierarchy has kept us from being among the leaders at present in charge.

Some day, perhaps, we shall have reputable, ethical, private practicing health specialists, hygienists, in spite of the reactionary stand of the medical specialists now in vogue.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Only Hair.

I have only hair and oily skin. Please give me some information on the subject. (M. H. H.)

Answer—The skin is likely to secrete an abundance of sebum (skin oil) in youth. Avoid all creams or other greasy cosmetic applications. Use cold water frequently, and at night a hot soap and water scrubbing to remove the excess of oil. If you wish advice about the treatment of seborrhea (as this excessive oiliness of skin and scalp is called) write for it. I will send you a booklet, containing no clippings but only a stamped envelope bearing your address.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Importance of Fixing the Power of the State in Cases of Crime.

Once more the question of the authority of a federal court to take jurisdiction over the administration of the criminal laws of a state is to be tried out here in the federal circuit court of appeals. The subject was freely commented upon by leading lawyers in the United States circuit court of appeals in Atlanta in October, in the cases of James A. Swain, of Bibb county, and Wade Johnson, of Jones county, both sentenced in Georgia courts to execution for murders of which they have been convicted. The granting of the appeals stays the executions until the appeals shall have been disposed of by the circuit court of appeals.

The course of the cases in that court will be watched with much interest by the lawyers of the state, since there is a general feeling among them that there is clear lack of jurisdiction over them by the federal courts.

The Fields of the Courts.

It has been held almost uniformly since the adoption of the federal constitution that the courts of the states cannot be interfered with or controlled in their plenary jurisdiction over crimes committed against the laws of a state.

The judicial power of the United States is clearly set out in the third article of the federal constitution. Alexander Hamilton, John Jay, James Madison, James Wilson and others explained minutely to the state conventions which ratified the constitution the nature and scope of the federal power, and the limits of the state power. The states have since rendered many decisions to the same effect and have consistently refused to take jurisdiction in cases of crime against the laws of a state.

In the celebrated Leo Frank case from the state and county courts of Georgia, the federal court, under a writ of habeas corpus and would not arrest the course of justice as administered by the courts of the state.

The Pleas in Pending Cases.

It is pointed out by competent constitutional authorities that the pleas in these Swain and Johnson cases don't present any constitutional question that authorizes the federal courts to assume jurisdiction over them.

In one case the ground of appeal is that the constitutional right of the condemned man had been violated in the granting of the writ of habeas corpus, because the jury went outside of the courthouse without the company of the presiding judge or the defendant, to observe the evidence on the spot of the shooting. That is said to have violated the right of the defendant to be present at all stages of the trial.

U. S. ORDERS CARROLL INTO ATLANTA PEN

rection on a charge of perjury before a federal grand jury investigating the famous "hit" case.

Announcement that Carroll would be hurried along to prison was made by the attorney general a few moments after the receipt here of press reports that the prisoner had been taken to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

It was made by Dr. C. Fred Williams, superintendent of the penitentiary, that he had been taken to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta. Dr. Williams said that he had been taken to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta. Dr. Williams said that he had been taken to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta.

"GOING TO HIS DEATH."

GREENVILLE, S. C., June 7.—(AP)—"It means more to me than just taking you to prison," it meant making him a part of the great drama of the day, the great drama of the day, the great drama of the day.

MRS. CARROLL SAYS.

GREENVILLE, S. C., June 7.—(AP)—"It means more to me than just taking you to prison," it meant making him a part of the great drama of the day, the great drama of the day, the great drama of the day.

Brother "Stunned."

Declaring he was "stunned" by the news, Norman Carroll said: "It is a very serious blow. My brother is in very bad shape now. He shows no interest in what is going on about him. I am afraid his removal will aggravate his condition."

Carroll collapsed on the train bringing him to Atlanta and remained in a semi-coma for several days after his arrival at the hospital. He was described by the attending physicians as being in a state of nervous strain during his long court fight to escape the prison sentence.

Soon, a slight improvement was noted in his condition. He recognized relatives and friends who called and was able to sit up in bed for brief intervals at times. Shortly afterward, however, his doctors reported a noticeable decline in his condition. He subsequently reported from his bedside how he was suffering from a sinking gradually lower.

Examined by Atlanta.

Recently he was examined by two physicians in the local hospital, the result of which was that he was found to be in a state of nervous strain during his long court fight to escape the prison sentence.

Examined by Atlanta.

Recently he was examined by two physicians in the local hospital, the result of which was that he was found to be in a state of nervous strain during his long court fight to escape the prison sentence.

But the authorities say that such right is given by the state and should be pleaded in time and guaranteed by the state. The violation, if it was done, raises no federal question. The amendments contained in the so-called "bill of rights" in the federal constitution apply only to the rights of defendants in federal courts and have always been held to have no application to the states or their courts.

Hence, the constitutional lawyers consulted by the writer will look with eager interest to learn whether and why the federal circuit court will assume jurisdiction in the premises.

The Right to Counsel.

In the other pending case the right to appeal to the federal court is granted on the ground that the defendant was not allowed sufficient time to fully consult with counsel before being put on trial.

But it is pointed out that there is no provision in the federal constitution that covers such right, especially in a case between a defendant and state. If it is entitled to such right, it should be the protection of it must come from the state. No federal constitutional right is involved and the lawyers seem generally agreed that the federal courts cannot guarantee it.

The adjudication of the cases will be of large importance in the administration of the criminal laws of the state to justice.

Leading lawyers of the city expressed gratification that Judge Tilson, rather than refuse the appeals, has seen fit to send them to the federal circuit court for definitive settlement. The cases will be heard in them will serve to settle whether the Georgia authorities are to administer the criminal laws of the state, or whether there shall be a new order of appeal from their final judgments to some of the inferior tribunals of the federal government.

The Good That May Result.

So much complaint is voiced all over the country against the slow and defective enforcement of the protective laws against criminals, that a decision denying that the federal courts can rightfully take jurisdiction in cases of crime established by federal laws, in all other criminal cases, the state is supreme and its jurisdiction inviolate.

There has been a growing fear that crime is tremendously promoted and protected by dilatory privileges granted to criminals upon technical and legal grounds.

Therefore, if the past decisions of the supreme court of the United States have not been sufficient to deter federal courts from interfering with state courts in their jurisdiction over crimes against the laws of a state, it is high time that some case be pushed to where a final decision in the premises may be had.

Judge Cooley and other constitutional writers hold that federal courts can rightfully take jurisdiction in cases of crime established by federal laws. In all other criminal cases, the state is supreme and its jurisdiction inviolate.

DR. MCGEEHEE REFUSES TO DISCUSS REPORT.

When apprised of the attorney general's action in ordering Earl Carroll to be brought to the Atlanta penitentiary, Dr. Henry M. McGeehee, Atlanta physician, who has been called to the penitentiary to examine Carroll, declined to discuss the report.

On his trip to Atlanta to get the five negroes, Dr. King had accompanied him, Earl said, but only for the night. King's car, King said, was not with him. King said that he was not with him. King said that he was not with him.

PRODUCER PALE AND THIN AS HE BOARDS TRAIN.

GREENVILLE, S. C., June 8.—(AP)—Earl Carroll was placed aboard a Pullman car in the local hospital this morning at 12:05 o'clock and the federal penitentiary on Southern railway train No. 135.

Carroll appeared pale and thin and he was carried from his room at the City hospital and placed in an ambulance. He seemed to be either in a state of nervous strain or in a state of physical exhaustion. He was carried from his room at the City hospital and placed in an ambulance.

Character Witnesses.

Arthur Andrews, of Oglethorpe county; Sheriff Stowe, of Stephens county; and other witnesses testified that the reputations of Mrs. Bell Carroll, her husband, Barnett Carroll, and Edgar Carroll, government witnesses yesterday, were "bad" and that they would not believe them under oath.

W. L. Bramblette, of Athens, in charge of Clark county's bloodhounds, which were used in a chase of Benny Dorsey, one of the negroes in Carroll's case, was threatened by the other witnesses called by the defense.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

ANSWERED BY Dr. S. Parkes Cadman.

Wyandotte, Mich.

I am told there is a passage in the Old Testament which makes the extinction of personality after death a motive for high endeavor. I denied it. Am I right?

No. The most likely passage to be thus construed is Ecclesiastes 1:10, which reads: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest."

These sentiments are not to be regarded as an authoritative utterance upon the question of a future life. Nor does the Old Testament, as a whole, pass upon that tremendous issue in a clear and decided manner.

The doctrine of immortality is unmistakably announced in the New Testament, whose writers shared the confidence of Christ concerning personal survival after death and associated its triumphs with all who believe the Gospel of the Risen Lord.

At the same time, there is a certain nobility of feeling in the text. If this life were all, the majority are inclined to say, as St. Paul pointed out, "Let us eat and drink, for we must die." Indeed, this is the maxim of myriads who profess a vague acceptance of a future state.

Not so the wise men of ancient Greece. They have none of the urge of folly based upon the brevity and uncertainty of existence. With rare insight and altruistic regard for the welfare of the race, they have supposed to be the endless sleep of death to enforce duty's demand here and now, a sentiment worthy of the best non-Christian philosophy.

New York City.

What is the most dangerous type of citizenship we have to counter today? And how can we obliterate its evils?

The reply varies according to the predilections or antipathies of those to whom the question is submitted. The result is that pacifists, socialists, anarchists, atheists, prohibitionists and probably some of our fellow revolutionists are nominated on the spot for this sinister eminence.

But passion strangles justice and prejudice has more false witness bearing to the cause for than even right hate. Experience demonstrates that citizenship is neither all white or all black, any more than men and women are either all virtuous or all vicious. The individual is the responsible agent for the state's welfare or injury. He must foster his good or his evil. By him alone is its course determined. The values of its government are insured by his moral stamina, and when they fail he is chargeable with the blame.

Hence, the selfish and predatory motives in all of us are the chief peril of the commonwealth. They are the worst elements of citizenship. The law, as it is, is a mere cloak for the selfishness of those who are limited to external conditions. Only our personal dedication to the public good, and our love, justice and brotherhood, can remedy the situation your letter depicts.

Let us look within ourselves for those hidden aims which we well know antagonize the general benefit. These are the worst elements of citizenship. The law, as it is, is a mere cloak for the selfishness of those who are limited to external conditions. Only our personal dedication to the public good, and our love, justice and brotherhood, can remedy the situation your letter depicts.

Crowning Sacrifice.

"Dat's nice," she repeated, while John William stood off and admired. Both men were looking at this gorgeous acquisition had cost—several pigs, many dozen eggs, money saved nickel by nickel. Twice they'd even changed a circus, and a fine pair of horses. However, Roxie finally got her machine.

"Huh!" John William remarked, but he was too devilish to say anything more. "I wouldn't swap my photograph for no such contraband as dat."

"Sholy you wouldn't, cause you don't have to make coils for six children with a machine like dis?"

"Dat thing aint no 'count," John William argued. "Us can't dance to no sewing machine tunes."

"Luh!" John William said, "I'm aint no sewing machine tunes. I'm aint no sewing machine tunes. I'm aint no sewing machine tunes."

Did Things "Now."

John William happened to be one of those frenkish negroes who did things right now. That's why he got along so well.

Promptly he rushed out and went running through the woods, across a narrow river of land, where he found a long, low, narrow boat. He found a long, low, narrow boat. He found a long, low, narrow boat.

After testing through briars and undergrowth for possibly a mile, John William came again to the water. He could almost throw a rock across it. Barely space for two boats to pass, and winding like a snake among the trees.

At some distance below he caught sight of the boat, churning upstream, and shouting on empty barge.

"Tain't nothin' wrong wid de Bayou Lady. Neither her barge. It 'pears like she keeps a blowin' to rouse de folks."

Leave Gone.

What for? He need ask himself only one. A leave must have broken. At low stages this stream is not navigable. Whenever it ran bank full, the water, then, hasting back home to get ready. There was no arguing with a Mississippi overflow, and he knew that if his boss had not been the farthest, sighted planter in the Delta, there would be no boat and barge to take off John William's family.

Leave broke. Cap'n Pat shouted back. "The boss sent me up to get on a leave. He sent me up to get on a leave. He sent me up to get on a leave."

Leave broke. Cap'n Pat shouted back. "The boss sent me up to get on a leave. He sent me up to get on a leave. He sent me up to get on a leave."

Leave broke. Cap'n Pat shouted back. "The boss sent me up to get on a leave. He sent me up to get on a leave. He sent me up to get on a leave."

Take Heart; You Inherit a Taste

For Virtue as Well as Vice

By Robert Quillen

Back in the saloon days, people would say of some young scamp who was headed for the dogs: "Poor Charlie! He inherited a taste for drink." There was then, and is now, a general belief, prompted by vanity, that weaknesses, diseases and a taste for sin are inherited, while each individual deserves full credit for his virtues.

Why does a dog turn around two or three times before lying down on a wood porch? He has sense. He knows he can't make a bed on the floor's uncaring surface. Yet he does as he does because he has inherited instincts from ancestors who knew nothing of porches.

To what extent are criminals responsible? This one is a creature of environment; that one a product of inheritance. They can't be turned loose because they are victims of circumstance, for if they are victims in fact they will remain what they are. The washed soul will return to her wallow. But at least they can be better understood.

How can any man know to what extent he is the victim or the beneficiary of his grandfathers?

"I feel two natures struggling within me," says the philosopher. He speaks of good and evil, things so hard to define.

But he feels many more than two natures. He is a composite of many natures, some respectable, some altogether unlovely.

The reasons of biarity that he does not trouble to analyze were wished upon him by a maternal grandmother; his seasons of sullen rage that seem without justification came from a grandfathers, his intervals of "spiritual exaltation from one whose very name is forgotten; his occasional attacks of wanderlust and his blind furies for a forebear who was a pirate and was hanged.

"Know thyself!" What an undertaking! It first would be necessary to meet and know those who sleep under the grass.

Negroes Throw Treasures

PHONOGRAPHS, STOVES LOST IN FLOOD

From Ship for Human Cargo

BY HARRIS DICKSON

Celebrated writer, author of "The Bayou Lady," Harris Dickson, here dramatizes the Mississippi flood in all its horror and tragedy, suffering, following the recent river rising, following the recent river rising, following the recent river rising.

This is the fourth of a series of articles on the Mississippi flood, published in the North American Newspaper Alliance. (Copyright, 1927, in all countries by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

Sixty miles away, to the northwest, a long thin ridge of dirt held out the Mississippi river.

Against that embankment, which now seemed so precariously frail, a bubbling yellow monster rose and raged, his ravenous teeth biting at the soft earth, while thousands of men fought him back to save their lands.

Still the river roared and raged and howled. Stubbornly the men fought and fought and fought.

"Dat's nice, real nice!"

The happy black woman sat down in a rocking chair with hands folded across her lap.

Not often did Roxie sit down and fold her hands. Six children, one cow, a few pigs and many chickens kept her very busy.

Roxie helped John William with his crop. A thrifty couple, these two, unusual negroes.

Upon this joyous occasion Roxie felt that she was entitled to sit down, that she must take time to smile when a brand-new sewing machine was actually placed in her house. Hers, her very own. And said for.

These past five years had latched to get a machine. But something else always seemed more desperately needed.

A cooking stove. Another bed as big as the one she had. A new pair of shoes. A new pair of shoes. A new pair of shoes.

"Dat's nice," she repeated, while John William stood off and admired. Both men were looking at this gorgeous acquisition had cost—several pigs, many dozen eggs, money saved nickel by nickel. Twice they'd even changed a circus, and a fine pair of horses. However, Roxie finally got her machine.

"Huh!" John William remarked, but he was too devilish to say anything more. "I wouldn't swap my photograph for no such contraband as dat."

A CHAIN IS AS STRONG AS ITS WEAKEST LINK

And because this is equally as true of a chain of grocery stores as of the fragile golden chain that circles milady's lovely neck, the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company devotes constant and particular care to the ideal that there shall be no weak link in the A&P system.

Because the reputation of the whole depends on the functioning of the single store, no stone is left unturned in the effort to make each store the full expression of A&P policies. That one fact alone assures you unvarying service and quality no matter at which of the many A&P stores you may trade.

Upon a morn both fair and gay
John Henry had a holiday.
His heart was crying "Hip, hooray,
My true love I'll take riding!"
So, all arrayed in very best
Unto his true love's home he pressed—
And laid before her his request.
She thanked him, quite confiding.
The drive began in jolly style.
They traveled many a happy mile
When—horrors—readers, please don't smile—
A rear tire burst and thundered!
You think our hero paused to moan
And ponder that his luck had flown?
Not he—he found a telephone.
Called "Hemlock, three five hundred!"
His tires had all been out of date.
But he had thought them adequate.
He didn't know, he paused to state,
Just how much good tires rated.
Well, now you'd think his car had wings—

Make Safety Doubly Sure

An important element of safety is the diversification of your investment holdings—not only diversification of the industries supporting your investments, but also of the location of these industries.
Draw a continuous line on your map from Boston, through New York, Chicago, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Atlanta, and thence across the Atlantic to London and back to Boston, thus touching the cities in which we maintain offices. You can then visualize the variety of industries supporting the securities we are able to offer, and their widely scattered points of origin.
Diversification makes safety doubly sure.

SINCLAIR SPEEDS TO PROTECT NOVEL

interests. That is the reason they are trying to suppress it.

"To go about it by citing moral reasons and arresting this perfectly innocent clerk, who should not be called upon to spend money to defend himself even if he has it, is terribly unjust."

Sinclair pointed out that one of the passages taken exception to by the Boston authorities was quoted from the song of Solomon.

"I shall try out some Biblical quotations on the Common next Sunday," he promised. "I'm going to see what they object to in that."

Sinclair's first plan was to have himself arrested immediately in Boston if he could not persuade Judge John J. Duff to let him be the defendant at the Griz hearing June 9 on charges of selling "oil."

But he was advised not to becloud the issue by changing separate trials of himself and Griz. So he will appear Thursday as a witness for Griz, as will his son, David Sinclair, upon whom the novelist said he drew for observation of the doings of the younger set.

After the hearing, Sinclair is prepared to discuss the censorship methods of Boston publicly and at length. He already has arranged to speak at the community church picnic Saturday afternoon and at a Boston Common meeting Sunday.

This is Sinclair's first tip east in five years. Before making it, he dispatched a telegram to the Boston authorities reading:

"There is manifestly no fairness in holding a bookseller's clerk for my novel 'Oil.' If I come to Boston immediately will you permit me to assume the responsibility which belongs to me?"

No answer came, and Sinclair, after a polite interval, headed for Boston, his expectations of being arrested at least fairly certain of being fulfilled.

"He is recognized," says Floyd Dell of Sinclair in a biography of the happy trouble-maker to be published by Doran July 15, "as being fundamentally a Puritan—and to Americans in revolt against Puritanism it counts heavily against him."

The "Puritan" boarded the midnight train for his assault on the Puritan stronghold.

DRIED-OUT BOWELS HOLD
MALARIA IN YOUR SYSTEM

If malaria is in your system, the only way to get it out without torturing and upsetting yourself is to take Dodson's Liver Tonic to clean out all the hardened, dried-out accumulation of bile in the liver and bowels, and carry the germs out with it.

Never take calomel. That's wrong. Calomel is mercury—a dangerous constipated bowels, that's true. But it salivates you—makes you sick and you lose a day from your work. It stifles the muscles of the bowels, deadens them so they can't act at all.

Dodson's Liver Tonic cleans you out good so the liver is free to get the malarial germs out of your blood, and the bowels can carry them off. Before you realize it the chills and fever stop. Malaria is gone.

Get the big bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic from your nearest store. They all have it. Keep it in the house so you will have it handy to take nights before you go to bed.—(adv.)

How to Get Pavement That Can't Wear Out and can't run up costly bills

There must be, first a good base—foundation. Then must come a cushion of sand. On top of this the toughest surface to be found—one that can protect the base from all traffic and weather conditions.

Paving brick, being vitrified, is the toughest, densest wearing surface man makes. This surface can't soften under heat; can't undergo chemical change. It can't be damaged by absorbing water. Moreover, it is built with shock-absorbing resilience. Workmen are surer of a good job in laying this surface—since brick comes from the factory in finished form, tested ready to put down.

These are reasons why brick is not only the highest-value pavement to be had—but the cheapest of all, as well!

"The A. B. C. of Good Paving," a taxpayer's manual, tells in words and pictures how engineers today build over-wearing, low cost, brick surfaced roads and streets. Address your request to National Paving Brick Manufacturers Association, 332 South Michigan Boulevard, Chicago.

Crackers and Little Rock Draw in Double-Header

Travelers Lose First 5-1, Win Second 4-2

Francis Put Up Good Exhibition of Hurling But Martin and Rogers Are Ineffective.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 7.—(Special.)—The Travelers and Crackers broke even here this afternoon at Kavanagh field. It was one of those give and take parties—Travelers gave the Crackers the first game, 5 to 1 and then took the second for themselves, 4 to 2. Of course, the Crackers played more than a minor part in the afternoon's competition, showing a frank willingness in the first game to take all that was given and reciprocating by encouraging the Travelers in their efforts to take the second.

Ray Francis, of the Cracker curving corps, stands out as the most brilliant performer in the first game, the good southpaw allowing only five hits and a single run.

While the Crackers had the hero of the first game, individual honors in the second game were well earned by "Spikes" Hunter, a fly to right who took charge in a crucial moment and by superb pitching made it possible for a victory to grow out of one big inning that the home club had. "Spikes" went in with the bases full and a couple of runs over in the third inning and stopped the Crackers cold, fanning a batter for the third out in the third and limiting the Atlantaans to one hit thereafter.

"Speed" Martin, late of the big show, was the victim of the Travelers' big inning, with some of his misfortune due to a couple of clever bunts that in the parlance of the ball yard practically stood him on his head. These two bunts and three real hits drove over four Travelers in the fourth inning and drove the "Speed" person out of the box, after which "Old" Tom Rogers showed that time has not weakened his arm nor lessened his cunning, although it was too late to save the ball game.

The punch in the Cracker attack was delivered in the first game by Billy Rhiel, "Able" Haas and Frankie Zoeller. In the two Cracker runs in the second game, Ostergaard's loner with one out and none on in the second inning started the scoring of the afternoon but it also ended the local run making for that error enabled the Crackers to score three runs in the third inning. Brock, first up, walked, Francis attempted to sacrifice and popped to Rhiel, Zoeller drove a fly to right for what should have been the second out but Sandquist muffed, putting Frankie on first and advancing Brock to third. Cuto drove a fly to right for an out, with Rhiel at bat. Thormahlen caught Zoeller off first but Brock raced for home and scored when Grimes' throw to the plate was wide. Rhiel then singled, scoring Zoeller. The situation was further complicated when Rhiel was permitted to steal second and when Haas singled to center. Rhiel threw out Gilbert, closing the spell of generosity that had given Atlanta three unearned runs.

The Crackers scored again in the sixth when Schwab stretched a hit to a double and Zoeller's short fly over second was allowed to fall for a base hit.

Rhiel Hits Home Run.

With two out in the ninth Rhiel tried to center and the hit went for a home run when the ball took a bad hop and got away from Guile.

The Travelers and Crackers met after the second inning, two of them coming at the start of the seventh inning, but being wanted. Guile started the seventh with a double and went to third on Grimes' single but Ostergaard fouled out to Brock and Rhiel hit into a double play.

Chambers and Martin got away well in the second game but after two scoreless innings the Crackers got to the new Traveler and scored two runs in the second inning. Kohlhecker started the inning with a single to center. Martin flied out to Sandquist but Zoeller singled to right. Kohlhecker reached third from where he scored on Cuto's long sacrifice fly to left.

Rhiel singled, advancing Zoeller to third, and Haas' double down the left field line scored Frankie. A base on balls to Gilbert filled the bases with two out and Hunter was sent to the box. "Spikes" pitched three strikes by Welch to end the rally.

Martin Knocked Out.

Oliver started the fourth for the Travelers with his second single off Martin. Washburn laid down a bunt, Martin making a difficult stop near the third-base line and then threw wildly toward first. Washburn had the throw beaten for a hit and Martin's wild home advanced Oliver to third. Guile smashed a liner to center for a single, scoring the Cuban. Grimes hit a double, filling the bases. Ostergaard slashed a single between first and second to score Washburn and Guile and to finish Martin for the day. Rogers taking his place, Battle lifted to Schwab at first but Almsmith drove a long fly to Zoeller and Guile and to finish Martin. Hunter fanned, ending the rally after four runs had been scored.

Have You Entered This Week's Swimming Meet? No? Well Hurry

A voice, sweetly feminine, called The Constitution Tuesday afternoon and demanded where she could register for The Constitution's and the Atlanta Parks departments swimming meet to be held at 2:30 o'clock Saturday over the course at Piedmont park.

Quite naturally she was told to register at the parks' department in city hall.

But the question arises—just how many of you fair nators haven't entered this week's meet?

If not, why not?

There will be two events, a 50 and a 110-yard free style. The entries will be restricted to girls and women between the ages of 14 and 21.

Medals will be awarded to the first place winners in each event. Ribbons, and a season pass to the pools will be given to those in second place. Ribbons will go to the third place winners.

So why not get in on this opportunity to gather in experience in competitive swimming. You'll admit you need it.

The New York Yankees defeated the Chicago White Sox, 4 to 1, in the first game of the first crucial series of the 1927 season.

Ruth hit his eighteenth homer and Gehrig his fourteenth, the blows coming in quick succession in the fourth inning.

The Giants, however, opened their series with the Pirates by losing by a 9 to 6 victory. Pittsburgh making 16 hits.

Harris Plants Bob Reeves At Shortstop

Buddy Myer's Transfer Proves Boomerang When Topper Rigney Fizzles.

Washington, June 7.—(AP)—Shortstop "Topper" Rigney, recently obtained by the Washington Americans from the Boston Red Sox, has been benched and Manager Bucky Harris gave Bob Reeves, former Georgia Tech captain, a tryout at the position in today's game with Cleveland.

Rigney, who was obtained in exchange for Buddy Myer from the Boston club, Manager Harris said has fallen down recently in his fielding. Since May 18 he has made 10 errors, almost an average of one misplay a game and his batting average has been .212. Reeves came with the Senators last June from the college diamond and while he has participated only occasionally in the lineup has batted for .250.

Two college rookies, Dear, Virginia Poly shortstop, and Snelling, University of Dayton pitcher, are due to report to the Senators this week for tryouts.

SIG HAUGDAHL IS EXPECTED TO RACE HERE

After three years of retirement, Sig Haugdaahl, three times champion of the world and rated by many as the most daring dirt track race driver ever to sit under a wheel, may emerge from retirement to start in the auto race at Lakewood park on July Fourth, Oscar Mills, secretary of the Southeastern Fair association, which operates Lakewood, announced Tuesday.

An offer of a new small-bore, high-speed Duesenberg or Miller motorized speedway machine is the bait Manager Mills is using to coax Haugdaahl from his retirement, and while the Scandinavian speed star is holding out for a larger bonus, Manager Mills announced that he is sure this can be settled amicably.

The small-bore machines, which have always been Haugdaahl's "pets" were just coming into their own when he retired from the racing game, and he has never had a chance to go after some of his own records with one of the little cars, although it has been common knowledge that he would like to. Through connections with builders of the machines, Mr. Mills was able to offer Haugdaahl one of the little machines for the Indianapolis Day runs here, and hopes to coax the Flying Norwegian back to Atlanta, where he has always been a great favorite with racing fans.

Mackey Dead.

Tucson, Ariz., June 7.—(AP)—Edward Mackey, 52, one of the "old timers" of baseball, is dead. He died here yesterday during an illness that followed an operation.

He started his diamond career in the late nineties with the Kansas City club of the old American association and then went to Milwaukee. He later played with the St. Louis Cardinals and Memphis in the Southern League.

Mackey concluded his diamond service as an umpire in the American association, Southern and Texas leagues.

Alabama State Singles Title Won By Marriott

Winner in Annual Shoot at Mobile Will Represent State in Grand American Handicap—Officers Are Elected.

Mobile, Ala., June 7.—(AP)—Henderson Marriott, of Mobile, won the Alabama state trap-shooting championship at singles targets here today and will represent the state in the next grand American handicap. Marriott missed only three shots in 200 shots today. During the morning events of 100 birds he broke 98 and in the afternoon smashed all but one, for a grand total on the day of 197 out of 200.

T. H. Lining, Mobile, won the doubles championship by breaking 89 out of 100 targets while Mrs. E. M. Mancin, Birmingham, won the women's trapshooting championship for the state of Alabama.

MERCER TO GIVE DIPLOMAS TODAY

Macon, Ga., June 7.—(AP)—The need of an adequate endowment fund for Mercer university and the part which the alumni of the university should play in the raising of the fund was explained to the alumni of the university at their annual banquet tonight by Robert M. Hitt, Savannah, the principal speaker.

Approximately 300 alumni of Mercer and members of the faculty and student class attended the banquet. In addition to the address of Mr. Hitt, short speeches were made by Hugh M. Willet, Atlanta, president of the alumni association; Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, Mercer president; U. O. Thompson, Miami, Fla., alumni of the university and a trustee, and representatives of the classes which are having reunions this year.

Mr. Hitt's address was an interpretation and explanation of the educational situation of the south today, with special emphasis on Mercer and similar denominational institutions. He quoted statistics showing Mercer's tremendous increase in enrollment during the last 12 years and the failure of the endowment fund to be increased along with the enrollment.

Chapter Houses Encouraged. As an encouragement to the Greek letter fraternities of Mercer university to build their own chapter houses, the members of the board of trustees of the university this afternoon granted permission to the fraternities to build near the centennial stadium. The trustees voted that the fraternities, in order to build on the lots selected, must maintain conditions which will be formed by the executive committee of the board.

Dr. B. D. Ragsdale, treasurer and professor of theology for many years, was re-elected to his two positions and S. W. Garrett was re-elected registrar and business manager.

The board members voted to meet again at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning to hear addresses by William Gibbs McAdoo and Dr. Rufus W. Weaver and receive their degrees.

The events of the last day of the Mercer commencement will begin at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning with the annual business meeting of the alumni association. Hugh M. Willet, Atlanta, national president of the association, will preside.

Following the meeting the classes which have reunions this year will meet at various places over the city for their luncheons.

Mr. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury in the cabinet of Woodrow Wilson, will give the literary address at the graduating exercises tomorrow night.

"LINDY" WELCOME ASSUMES COLOR

The highest honors ever accorded a private citizen in his native land, was admitted today to that select circle of explorers of sea and air and land who have been awarded the Hubbard medal of the National Geographic society.

This medal has been bestowed only seven times, the most recent recipient having been Commander Richard Evelyn Byrd, who received it at the hands of President Coolidge less than a year ago "for his epochal achievement in first reaching the north pole by airplane."

Colonel Lindbergh's citation probably will read for his epochal achievement in first flying an airplane from New York to Paris. The actual presentation will be some time in the future and probably by President Coolidge.

Brothers in Conquest. Besides Commander Byrd and Lindbergh, the only other recipients of the medal have been Rear Admiral Peary, discoverer of the north pole; Roald Amundsen, Captain Robert A. Bartlett, Grove Carl Gilbert, Sir Henry T. Shackleton and Vilhjalmur Stefansson.

Arriving here at noon Saturday from Chicago, Colonel Lindbergh will be greeted at the wharf by the first men to span the Atlantic in a plane, Commander A. G. Read, now commander of the Hampton Roads Naval Air station, who in 1919 piloted the navy seaplane NC-4 from Newfoundland to the Azores and thence to Portugal and England.

Commander Read was invited to attend the navy yard ceremonies by the semi-official reception committee, which announced that a special committee of senators and another of members of the house of representatives also would be at the yard to welcome the flier. While he is in Washington, Colonel Lindbergh probably will visit the spot at Fort Myer, had sighted the Columbia. Eager eyes in thousands of cases aided by powerful binoculars, were strained to the eastward, where, in the blue late afternoon sky small specks became visible. Nearer and nearer they approached; bigger and bigger, they grew rapidly, until even the naked eye could pick out the yellow winged Columbia.

150,000 GERMANS CHEER CHAMBERLIN

As the American, with its honor guard of German planes, majestically soared over Templehof field the American and German flags, waving hands and throwing hats in the air. The plane seems small.

The Bianca plane, which every body imagined, because it crossed the ocean, must be enormously large, seemed tiny amid its larger German brothers. Then for a few minutes the machines were out of sight again for they flew over the city, to give the watching thousands there a chance to see the historic craft.

The first fleet reappeared and made a big loop over the airfield, then slowly descended, the Columbia striking the ground at 5:51. The crowd tried vainly to rush the plane, but even the invited guests were not permitted to penetrate the inner circle thrown around the Columbia, within which only the official welcoming party was admitted.

Amid deafening hurrahs and hoots, the trans-Atlantic fliers stepped out of the machine. The American ambassador, Jacob Gould Schurman, warmly clasped their hands. Then the German minister of economics, Herr Curtius, who especially dwelt on the nature of the Columbia's flight, placed this new boundary mark of human ability on German soil and carrying it indelibly on German hearts.

Good-Will Messengers. Bourgmaster Scholz felicitated them as "courageous sailors of the air and conquerors of the ocean." Ambassador Schurman then welcomed the aviators in formal words. He hailed them as messengers of good will and friendship from the American people to the German people, and invited them to be his guests at the American embassy.

There were lusty cheers after each arrival, then a chorus of voices from the crowds standing on tables, chairs and fences to look over the policemen's heads, yelling insistently: "Hoch, hebr, hoch!" "Hoch, hebr, hoch!" which was the sound increased in volume as the sound increased, and Chamberlin, smiling in pleased fashion, and Levine, solemnly, were borne aloft by Luftwaffe officials.

These, however, soon gave signs of strain, and on their shoulders the aviators seemed to sit on a rocking horse, so that the more powerful police had to replace them and hold the visitors until a barrage of photographers snapped them.

Blushing they stepped forth pretty 14-year-old Suzanne Haeseler, daughter of the chairman of the board of aldermen, with a huge bouquet of white roses, and a little maid, the day before had stood on the flying field in a thin festive dress until her teeth chattered from the strong wind blowing, and here she failed to come. Bowing her sweetest today, she handed the flowers to the pilot of the Columbia.

Proprietor Decorated. Bourgmaster Scholz presented them with a huge laurel wreath, while numerous clubs, including the Federation of Air Service Veterans, who fought against Chamberlin's fellow officers in the world war, added their homage with floral wreaths.

Two of these wreaths were draped on the propeller of the Columbia, and the machine was rushed off into a hangar, to prevent possible damage. The aviators then took their place in the automobiles of the Aero club's chairman with police standing watch on the running board. The car made the circuit of the huge flying field where the cheering crowd were lined up.

Just before they started on this triumphal swing, the Czechoslovakian minister, Dr. Frantisek Chvalkovsky, whose wife was Miss Blanche Russell, of Washington, handed Chamberlin a letter on the official legation stationery, advising him:

"Having read about your desire to have a good drink of Pilsener beer on your arrival at Berlin, I would be very pleased if you would accept a case of real Pilsener for that purpose."

Form Solid Line. This is the first instance of Pilsener beer being officially invoked as a social beverage.

"Our policy of 'Never a Special Sale' forces rock bottom prices at the time the merchandise first enters our store. Our prices have to be lower in order to keep merchandise moving under such a plan."

"Therefore when you get a low price in a piece of furniture, rug or a drapery job here, the merchandise is not shop worn. It's brand-new."

"The personnel of our sales organization consists of some of the foremost furniture, rug and drapery men in the South. A fact that makes buying here a pleasure."

"A great variety of our stock makes satisfactory selection easy."

SPEED LIMIT SET FOR MORGAN CITY BOATS

Morgan City, La., June 7.—(AP)—Taking her first serious cognizance of the flood, Morgan City today invoked her automobile traffic laws to stop motor boats from speeding up and down streets in the residential section. The speeding boats have been striking up waves which washed into houses and caused considerable damage. It also was feared that the wave wash might disrupt fire plugs and cause the city's water system to be put out of commission.

The water was rising here today and some feared the railway might be put out of commission, even though Southern Pacific officials entertain no fears, having raised the level of the track four feet.

A novel sight was that of many deer appearing in the town today. Driven from the flooded lowlands the animals came in for food. Two were caught and are being fed on rations stored up for domestic live stock and for the box dairy.

Sprinkle Streets. An amusing story came from Patterson, a small town to the west, today. It has not rained in this territory for several days and with the flood water backed up all around town behind the protection levee, the citizens were sprinkling the streets to lay the dust. A water wagon was taking the supply from the flood.

Berwick's seven-foot levee still holds out the water but vigilance has been relaxed. The Red Cross representatives at Sikeston, Mo., have headquarters for 60 tents. The requests also carried the message that water was rising and it was believed the people would hold their levee at New Madrid.

A dispatch from Branson, Mo., related that several families in Forsyth and Hollister were moving to high ground at Hollister and were being cared for by the Red Cross. Tents are being sent to Tiptonville, Tenn., from Charleston, Mo.

REHABILITATION STARTS IN KENTUCKY AREA

Hazard, Ky., June 7.—(AP)—Giving no thought to the losses they have suffered, but determined to "get things straightened out," the mountain folk of eastern Kentucky whose homes were destroyed or damaged by cloudburst and flood last week, today went about their work of rehabilitation.

Their immediate wants supplied by the Red Cross, the people have taken their losses and are now working on set about rebuilding and cleaning up. Mattresses and bedclothes, watercooler and floor mats were being cleared of the layer of mud deposited by the flood.

This spirit of "getting things cleaned up" pervades the hills and valleys. Asked to estimate their losses, the sufferers' answer is, "I hadn't thought of that."

Loss $3,000,000. Business men and bankers here, however, have been counting the cost, and have estimated the tangible loss $3,000,000 in Hazard and Perry county. Perry is one of more than half a dozen counties that suffered from the storm, and reports from elsewhere have placed the loss as high as $25,000,000.

Jess Morgan, president of the First National bank, said the miners of Perry county alone were losing approximately $275,000 a week while the mines are idle. If relief is given so the sufferers can tide over the coming month, until the mines are in full operation again, Mr. Morgan said the suffering would be reduced to a minimum.

Conditions along Car's fork, where it was also a great night for the town, showed the damage which Kottbus, like every other self-respecting German town, swarms. Added to the treat of the whitewashed hills, days, they were told, "the kids with their parents and sample beers and light wines of the countryside."

labor, materials and equipment. Opposition in committee was said to have developed on the question of the propriety of any stand by an organization whose sole purpose is given as the fostering of road construction from the purely general point of view.

A third resolution, offered by a sub-committee, proposed the appointment of a committee of five from the association to investigate the question of truck load limits during the next year and recommend to the association action looking toward uniform loading laws.

T. L. Kirkpatrick, president of the Bankhead Highway association, named chairman of the resolutions committee, which went into immediate session.

Harvey Granger, of Savannah, is chairman of a committee named to offer a course of action on national highways.

Committee work was the order late today of the convention of the United States Good Roads association, tonight the delegates from 30 states were to attend a reception in honor of distinguished members and visitors.

Braden's Indiana address attacked the attitude of the federal highway arbiters as "not only wrong but unjust in that it eliminates the very thing that has brought our roads to their present state of development." The motivating factor he listed as the enthusiasm for a highway building which can be attained only through building them as memorials to the great living and dead.

Further discussion of the matter is slated for Friday, which is set aside as national highway day in the convention.

The speeding boats have been striking up waves which washed into houses and caused considerable damage. It also was feared that the wave wash might disrupt fire plugs and cause the city's water system to be put out of commission.

The water was rising here today and some feared the railway might be put out of commission, even though Southern Pacific officials entertain no fears, having raised the level of the track four feet.

A novel sight was that of many deer appearing in the town today. Driven from the flooded lowlands the animals came in for food. Two were caught and are being fed on rations stored up for domestic live stock and for the box dairy.

Sprinkle Streets. An amusing story came from Patterson, a small town to the west, today. It has not rained in this territory for several days and with the flood water backed up all around town behind the protection levee, the citizens were sprinkling the streets to lay the dust. A water wagon was taking the supply from the flood.

Berwick's seven-foot levee still holds out the water but vigilance has been relaxed. The Red Cross representatives at Sikeston, Mo., have headquarters for 60 tents. The requests also carried the message that water was rising and it was believed the people would hold their levee at New Madrid.

A dispatch from Branson, Mo., related that several families in Forsyth and Hollister were moving to high ground at Hollister and were being cared for by the Red Cross. Tents are being sent to Tiptonville, Tenn., from Charleston, Mo.

REHABILITATION STARTS IN KENTUCKY AREA

Hazard, Ky., June 7.—(AP)—Giving no thought to the losses they have suffered, but determined to "get things straightened out," the mountain folk of eastern Kentucky whose homes were destroyed or damaged by cloudburst and flood last week, today went about their work of rehabilitation.

Their immediate wants supplied by the Red Cross, the people have taken their losses and are now working on set about rebuilding and cleaning up. Mattresses and bedclothes, watercooler and floor mats were being cleared of the layer of mud deposited by the flood.

This spirit of "getting things cleaned up" pervades the hills and valleys. Asked to estimate their losses, the sufferers' answer is, "I hadn't thought of that."

Loss $3,000,000. Business men and bankers here, however, have been counting the cost, and have estimated the tangible loss $3,000,000 in Hazard and Perry county. Perry is one of more than half a dozen counties that suffered from the storm, and reports from elsewhere have placed the loss as high as $25,000,000.

Jess Morgan, president of the First National bank, said the miners of Perry county alone were losing approximately $275,000 a week while the mines are idle. If relief is given so the sufferers can tide over the coming month, until the mines are in full operation again, Mr. Morgan said the suffering would be reduced to a minimum.

Conditions along Car's fork, where it was also a great night for the town, showed the damage which Kottbus, like every other self-respecting German town, swarms. Added to the treat of the whitewashed hills, days, they were told, "the kids with their parents and sample beers and light wines of the countryside."

Chamberlin, for the pronunciation of whose name a certain British statesman has done nothing to help the public, is liked for his Nordic blondness and his simplicity of manner. Levine has said attraction in his ability to speak acceptable German.

labor, materials and equipment. Opposition in committee was said to have developed on the question of the propriety of any stand by an organization whose sole purpose is given as the fostering of road construction from the purely general point of view.

A third resolution, offered by a sub-committee, proposed the appointment of a committee of five from the association to investigate the question of truck load limits during the next year and recommend to the association action looking toward uniform loading laws.

T. L. Kirkpatrick, president of the Bankhead Highway association, named chairman of the resolutions committee, which went into immediate session.

Harvey Granger, of Savannah, is chairman of a committee named to offer a course of action on national highways.

Committee work was the order late today of the convention of the United States Good Roads association, tonight the delegates from 30 states were to attend a reception in honor of distinguished members and visitors.

Braden's Indiana address attacked the attitude of the federal highway arbiters as "not only wrong but unjust in that it eliminates the very thing that has brought our roads to their present state of development." The motivating factor he listed as the enthusiasm for a highway building which can be attained only through building them as memorials to the great living and dead.

Further discussion of the matter is slated for Friday, which is set aside as national highway day in the convention.

SPEED LIMIT SET FOR MORGAN CITY BOATS

Morgan City, La., June 7.—(AP)—Taking her first serious cognizance of the flood, Morgan City today invoked her automobile traffic laws to stop motor boats from speeding up and down streets in the residential section. The speeding boats have been striking up waves which washed into houses and caused considerable damage. The performance was opened by J. Delishaw, Dr. Powell and J. B. Brooks, who composed a mandolin, violin and guitar trio. This was followed by a number from Bennie Borg, "The Singing Soldier."

Little Miss Margaret Coan proved a favorite in acrobatic dancing. Miss Dorothy Rogers rendered the black bottom and the Charleston. Both of these young ladies, who are only eight years old, have won many prizes in dancing contests.

J. O. Brooks, A. H. Wooten and Charles Black gave vaudeville stunts, which consisted of buck dancing, playing on the harmonica and jokes.

The audience was composed of the inmates of the hospital, with a number of visitors from the city.

Miss Weaver Weds Dr. Sutton At Fashionable Noon Ceremony

Thomaston, Ga., June 7.—Beautiful in every detail was the marriage of Miss Martha Drake Weaver and Dr. William A. Sutton, of Atlanta, which was solemnized Tuesday at high noon, at the First Methodist church, by Rev. J. M. Tamm, assisted by Rev. S. R. England. An artistic decoration of cathedral candelabra, palms, and high basket vases filled with snapdragons transformed the church altar into an exquisite background for the bridal party.

Mrs. E. C. Grimshaw and Mrs. James Cobb were in charge of the music and the following pre-nuptial program was rendered while the guests assembled: Mrs. Julian Hightower sang "Thou'rt Like Unto a Lovely Flower" by Rubenstein, and "Consecration" by McFadden. Miss Christine Adams contributed a violin number, "Melody in D," by Hueter. Mrs. Susan Bowden Johnson sang "Morning" by Tschakovsky. "Until" by Wilfrid Moberg, and "I Love You Truly" by Carrie Jacobs Bond, just before the ceremony.

Wedding Attendants.
A procession composed of the following friends of the bride sang the "Bridal Chorus" by Schubert: Mrs. James Cobb, Mrs. H. A. Askin, Mrs. Elmo Adams, Miss Antoinette Johnson, Mrs. John Kennedy, Mrs. Fred Smith, Miss Louise Hightower, Mrs. Hugh Thurston, Mrs. D. W. Jones, Miss Frances Britt, Mrs. Julian Hightower, Mrs. Lucius Polk, Mrs. Elizabeth Harris, Mrs. O. D. Jones, Mrs. J. B. Girardeau, Miss Geraldine Knox, Miss Weaver Dallas, Mrs. Ruth Adams, Miss Christine Adams, Mrs. Betty Matthews, Miss Annie Jo Barron, Miss Effie McDaniel, Mrs. Travis Weaver, Mrs. J. C. Jones, Jr. The members of the chorus were organist, piano, and shades and picture hats to match and carried shepherd's crooks. They passed down the center aisle singing, immediately before the entrance of the bride and groom, and formed a group back of the altar. Jerry Alwright and Willis Sutton Savage acted as ushers. Little Miss Virginia Hightower and Willis Sutton, Jr., were junior bridesmaid and groomsmen and entered together. Miss Hightower's dress was white chiffon trimmed with green ribbon. She wore a picture hat and carried a bouquet of pastel shaded flowers. The bride, Miss Weaver, wore a lovely lace-trimmed frock of orchid georgette, with a picture hat and slipper to match. She carried an arm bouquet of Columbia roses and a delphinium, showered with swain.

FELT MISERABLE, LOOKED AWFUL
Louisiana Man Was In a Suffering Condition From Indigestion Before He Began to Take Black-Draught.

Ville Platte, La.—Mr. Arcadius Dupuis, of this place, describes in the following statement his experience in the use of Black-Draught.

"I had indigestion for about four years. I would have very bad spells. I would get a tight feeling in my stomach, and now and then in my head, and I would feel very nervous, and I would feel very hot, and I would feel very cold, and I would feel very weak, and I would feel very tired, and I would feel very miserable, and I would look very awful. I was so poor, and just a shadow of what I had been.

"I can't begin to tell the good it did me. I haven't had any more of the bad spells, and I am now healthy and well. I have felt like working since I found out about Black-Draught and how it helped me. I have been like a new person these past three years.

"One of my boys, age 15, got sick; his stomach first got out of order. He dropped around, but after taking Black-Draught he was just as well as ever. My wife takes Black-Draught as a laxative and we give it to the little ones for colds."

MERCHANTS HEAR MACY EXECUTIVE

BY LOYD A. WILHOIT.

The "follow through" is just as important in securing results from advertising as it is in golf, according to E. R. Dibrell, executive vice president and publicity director of R. H. Macy & Co., who addressed the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association Tuesday night at the chamber of commerce on "How Most Effectively to Follow-Up Your Advertising With Store Displays and Salesmanship."

These three classes of selling are inseparably linked and merged," Mr. Dibrell declared. "Each is dependent on the other. In order to secure real efficiency, it is necessary that each be done well."

With the aid of charts, Mr. Dibrell showed how advertisements of the big New York Macy store are supported by special window and store displays and how special training in the quality type and value of the merchandise advertised is given salespeople who distribute it to the public.

"We have trained teachers demonstrate to the salespeople the various selling points of the merchandise which we advertise," Mr. Dibrell said, "and in addition, we undertake the much greater task of training our sales force in the quality and attractiveness of all merchandise in their respective departments."

Mr. Dibrell showed how the Macy store has classified its advertising, adding that newspaper space is not bought and used exclusively for the purpose of bringing customers into the store to purchase certain articles.

"We have divided advertising into four classes," he said. "First is the offering at a stated price, designed to make immediate sales. Second is what we term assortment advertising, designed to convince the public that we have a wide and select assortment of every type of goods. Third is style advertising, designed to teach the public that what we sell is right as to cut and color and fabric, that it is new and that it is attractive. Fourth, there is institutional advertising, which is intended to sell our location, our policies and the human interest phases of the store."

Mr. Dibrell was introduced by Frank H. Neely, general manager of M. Rich & Bros. Co., who paid tribute to the business aggressiveness of the speaker and his rise to so prominent a position in the retail world.

In the absence of W. O. Foots, president of the association, J. P. Allen, of the J. P. Allen company presided over the meeting. Music was furnished by the Mandolin club of the Rich store and other local talent.

Georgia Baptists Hold 45th Session At Bessie Tift

Forsyth, Ga., June 7.—The 45th annual session of the Baptist Women's Missionary union of Georgia, in session at Bessie Tift college, Forsyth, opened Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. W. J. Neel, of Cartersville, presiding.

The message of cordial welcome extended by Dr. Aquila Chamlee, president of Bessie Tift college and host of the convention, was reflected in the greetings and handshake of Mrs. Chamlee, the Bessie Tift household, and the hospitable people of Forsyth as they mingled with the visitors in the assembly hall, on the campus and in the streets.

In her response to Dr. Chamlee's welcome, Mrs. Wilbur Jones, superintendent of the Atlanta association, voiced the union's pleasure in assembling within the walls of Bessie Tift college, sponsored by Georgia Baptists, and especially dear to Georgia Baptist women, many of whom present graduated from its historic halls when it was known and loved as "Monroe Female college."

The convention's opening praise service was led by Mrs. Bessie Willingham Tift, in honor of whom the school received its new and revered name. Since the days when Mrs. Tift was a student of this school, her devotion to her alma mater has never waned, but growing stronger through the years, has made itself manifest not only by her outspoken interest, but by her extensive financial support as well. Together with her late husband, Captain H. H. Tift, of Tifton, Mrs. Tift, by her gracious gifts and energetic support, has done much toward placing Bessie Tift on the plane where it now stands, recognized as one of the foremost colleges for women in the south.

Following opening preliminaries the convention went into its first business session and official reports were called for. Mrs. R. B. Adair, recording secretary of the executive board, in her report showed this board to have been active and earnest in its constant supervision of the state work during the months between the annual sessions.

Mrs. "A. Etheridge, superintendent of the daily Bible readers' course, stated that approximately 1,800 women are doing systematic Bible study according to the Sampey plan, adopted by the union in February, 1926. Dr. Sampey's plan as outlined by Mrs. Etheridge includes the daily reading of two chapters from the historical books, Genesis through Esther, two from the poetical and prophetic books, Job through Malachi, one from the New Testament, together with a favorite chapter selected as preferred—thus providing the reading of six chapters daily, or the reading of the entire Bible within much less than a year.

Mrs. E. M. Bailey, trustee, reported that the Mary P. Willingham school, located at Blue Ridge, is operating on a sound financial basis and having an enrollment for the present year of 165 girls, with a graduating class of 30 members.

Rural extension work was reported by Miss Ida V. Rhoad, field worker under direction of the union. Miss Rhoad's report of field activities included approximately 300 talks in schools and churches, 75 all-day meetings attended, 71 open conferences conducted, 34 mission study classes taught, 482 subscriptions to denominational magazines taken and 8,517 miles traveled, besides various other duties that have devolved upon her as a part of her field labors.

Mrs. L. O. Freeman, superintendent of publicity, expressed gratification and cordial appreciation of the hearty cooperation of press and scrapbook chairmen over the state. The hundreds of press notices and news articles appearing in the local and statewide papers indicate a decided increase in interest and efficiency in this special phase of Christian work. Mrs. Freeman stated that the Atlanta Constitution, through the medium of its federated page, has been a positive factor in the development of church publicity. In behalf of the union, appreciation was expressed for the courtesy extended Baptist women by the management of the paper and by the editors of the page.

No scrap-books will be exhibited at this session of the union, as the 1926 books were judged in November and the 1927 books are not yet complete. The 1926 scrap-book banner was won by the Pulaski-Bleckley association, with Mrs. W. A. Mason, of Hawkinsville, as chairman.

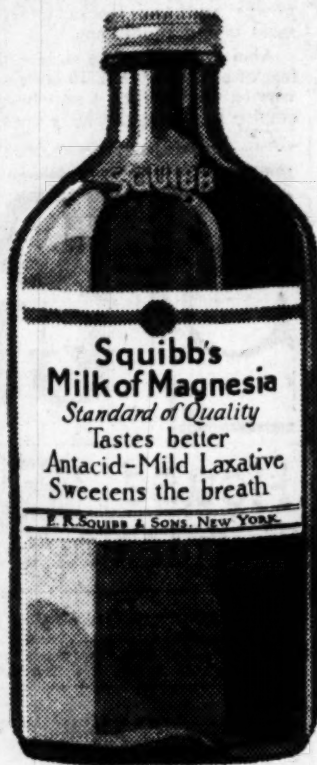

The Tuesday evening session of the convention was devoted to a program on young people's work, presided over by Miss Julia Allen, young people's secretary. The feature of the evening was an artistic and impressive pageant, "The Heroine of Ava," presented by students of Bessie Tift. This historical pageant is based upon the story of the missionary heroism of the beautiful Ann Hasseltine Judson, who, together with her young husband, Adoniram Judson, went at the call of her Master to carry the gospel message to Burma, and to bear the hardships of a life in a country where Christ was almost wholly unknown and where fear and not love ruled the hearts of men. The opening devotionals were led by Miss Elizabeth Bowen, president of the Bessie Tift Young Women's auxiliary.

The address of the evening was given by Mrs. Janie Cree Boer, principal of the W. M. E. training school, Louisville, Ky., and a sister of Dr. Arch C. Cree, corresponding secretary-treasurer of the state board of missions.

Mrs. George Coder Honors Visitors.

Mrs. George Coder was hostess at a bridge-tee Tuesday afternoon at her home on Briarcliff road in compliment to her mother, Mrs. A. L. Kidd, of Birmingham, Ala., and Mrs. Henry Pratt, of Tampa, Fla., the guest of Mrs. Charles A. Huckle, Mrs. H. F. Thompson assisted in entertaining.

Mrs. Lindsey Thompson was hostess Tuesday evening at her home on South Prater at dinner in compliment to Mrs. Kidd, who leaves Wednesday to join Mr. Kidd in Houston, Texas. Wednesday Mrs. H. F. Thompson will entertain at a luncheon at her home on Fourteenth street, followed by a theater party at the Georgia honoring Mrs. Kidd.

FINAL RITES TODAY FOR DANIEL H. HICKY

Funeral services for Daniel H. Hicky, 62, manager of the safe deposit department of the Atlanta Trust company, who died Tuesday morning at the home, 880 Myrtle street, following an illness of less than a week, will be held this morning at 10 o'clock from the Sacred Heart church. The Rev. Father J. J. Lowe will officiate and the body will be taken to Social Circle, Ga., for interment. Mr. Hicky had been in failing health for several months, but not until last Friday was he forced to retire from active work, due to a heart attack. His condition grew steadily worse until he died Tuesday morning.

Mr. Hicky was born in Louisiana, and at an early age entered the cotton seed oil business. He came to Georgia many years ago and established several cotton seed oil mills in the state. He removed to Memphis in 1907 and established D. H. Hicky and company, which functioned for many years in western Tennessee.

During the world war he was connected with a New York oil export firm. Soon after the war he returned to Georgia and eight years ago became connected with the Atlanta Trust company.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. E. A. Fries, Mrs. William L. Bicknell and Miss Peggy Hicky, and one son, Daniel W. Hicky.

ATLANTA IS PRAISED FOR FLOOD RELIEF

With more than $50,000 in cash already forwarded to Red Cross headquarters at Washington, D. C., and many local pledges yet remaining to be paid up, a message from national headquarters of the organization congratulates Atlanta on over-subscribing its $50,000 Mississippi flood relief quota, according to an announcement Tuesday by Rodney Morrison, Jr., chairman of the Atlanta chapter.

Additional advice received at headquarters of the Atlanta chapter Tuesday from Washington caused some concern in regard to the new message confronting the Mississippi valley due to high water developing in streams tributary to the Mississippi. In large areas of flooded territory, rehabilitation work is already well under way, and additional floods would intensify the disaster to an extreme degree, the advice stated.

Through error, it was reported on Tuesday that the Atlanta chapter, American Red Cross, was soliciting used clothing for flood refugees. Mr. Morrison, who has recently returned from a trip extending throughout the flooded area, states that appeals for used clothing from whatever source are absolutely unauthorized by those in charge of flood relief.

He stated that quantities of clothing have been shipped from all parts of the United States and in many cases, from foreign countries, and that it will be absolutely impossible to use a considerable portion of what has already been supplied.

HARRIS ENDS TOUR OF FLOODED AREAS

United States Senator William J. Harris passed through Atlanta yesterday on his way to Washington on his return from the Mississippi flood section where, as a member of the congressional committee investigating flood conditions with the view of congressional relief, he spent a week or more.

"We made the trip all the way from Memphis to New Orleans," said Senator Harris. "We went far out into the flood area, going by railroad, boat and often in small canoes, passing through miles of flooded forests."

"The committee is unanimously of the opinion that the government must do something definite towards relief and I am sure that congress will take such action."

All Engineers.

"Fortunately, the engineers now studying this situation will have time to make careful investigation and report to congress as to what is best to be done to prevent further occurrence of such catastrophes as that which has recently overwhelmed the Mississippi valley."

"The ablest army engineers in the country have been asked by the president to make a study of the situation and they are acting in cooperation with some of the ablest civilian engineers in America. By the time congress meets a well formulated plan will be presented making specific recommendations as to what is best to be done, with an estimate of the cost."

Endorsed Session.

"While I favored an extra session to meet the emergency situation presented by the flood, there is of course an element of advantage in the fact that there is plenty of time intervening between now and the regular session in December to permit a scientific study of the situation, which, of course, must be the basis of any recommendation for congressional action."

Senator Harris will be in Washington for the next two weeks, after which he will return to Georgia. Mrs. Harris and their daughter, Miss Julia, will spend a while in the mountain section of Rabun county, while Senator Harris will be in Atlanta most of the time during the approaching session of the general assembly.

CLOTHING OFFICIAL VISITOR IN ATLANTA

American men are realizing more and more every day the value of dressing well, and there is a growing demand for the ensemble male wardrobe purchased at direction of experts in style, colors and fabrics.

This is the statement of E. Eugene Umland, of the service department of the House of Kuppenheimer, nationally-known Chicago makers of high-grade men's suits, who is here for a week to confer with Morris Eismann, president of the Atlanta men's store, on business of the firm.

Eismann is Atlanta dealer in Kuppenheimer clothing.

"The old system of buying a suit of clothes at one store, a hat at another, tie and socks at a third and the remainder of a wardrobe at a fourth store is passing," Mr. Umland said. "Men are coming to depend upon the judgment of experts in their clothing and are buying entire wardrobes at a single store, thus assuring harmony of colors and styles. The idea was originated by the House of Kuppenheimer and is proving popular and beneficial to manufacturers and retailers alike."

Mr. Umland also said that producers of men's clothing are making special sales campaigns on fifty-dollar winter suits.

"While lower-priced suits may be sold," he said, "it is a fact that the three requisites of correct men's clothing—style, tailoring and fabric—cannot be provided at less than $50. With a constantly growing demand for better grades of men's clothing, resulting largely from intelligent advertising, the fifty-dollar winter suit is becoming an established American institution."

ATLANTA IS FIRST IN P. O. INCREASE

Showing a 17.76 per cent gain in postal receipts in May, 1927, over receipts of May, 1926, Atlanta for the fourth time within the past six months led the fifty largest cities in the country in percentage of gain. Postmaster E. K. Large announced Tuesday.

Atlanta's total for the month past was $354,554.61, as compared to $301,092.27 in 1926. Large announced.

Los Angeles, showing a percentage gain of 14.89 was second in standing of the 50 leading post offices of the country, a report issued by Postmaster General New showed. Akron, was third with 14.85 gain.

Shows Expansion.

"Inasmuch as it is generally agreed that a city may be judged by its postal receipts, Atlanta's record gives wonderful enlightenment on business conditions here," Postmaster Large declared Tuesday. "The steady increase made here during the past year and a half shows plainly that Atlanta is rapidly expanding as a commercial center."

May's receipts, while exceptionally large, do not approach the record in volume. December, 1926, established a high mark with $469,151.29.

Compared to Atlanta's increase, other southern cities were left far behind, although increases were registered everywhere with the reasonable exception of New Orleans, with a 3.01 decrease, and Jacksonville with a 5.82 decrease. The increase shown included:

Southern Cities.

Baltimore, 0.89 per cent; Washington, 1.85; Dallas, 5.29; Louisville, 5.08; Richmond, 1.21; Nashville, 1.15; Houston, 6.81; Fort Worth, 2.49; Oklahoma City, 2.06; San Antonio, 9.59; Birmingham, 10.99; Norfolk, 0.22; Little Rock, 0.10; Charlotte, 19.76; Savannah, 0.54; Columbia, 4.99; Lexington, Ky., 18.49; Jackson, Miss., 4.78.

COOLIDGE CONFERS ON RELIEF SESSION

Washington, June 7.—(P)—Appeals for a special session of congress in the fall are gaining the ear of President Coolidge who will confer tomorrow with Senator Smoot, of Utah, one of the republican leaders, on the question.

Still unconvinced that convening of congress a month or two ahead of the regular session in December would be of material aid in meeting the Mississippi valley flood problem, the president "listening" to the requests pending more definite reports on what is needed in the way of flood control and prevention legislation.

FUNERAL DIRECTORS MEET IN BRUNSWICK

Brunswick, Ga., June 7.—(P)—President J. D. Curtis, of the Georgia Funeral Directors' association, called the twenty-sixth annual convention of that organization to order here this morning at 10 o'clock with the largest attendance in recent years.

The first session included an address by the president, address of welcome by Mayor C. M. Peckford, and resolutions by J. Freeman Hart, of Macon, and an address by Fred G. Warde, secretary of the Brunswick Board of Trade. At the afternoon session Frank H. Lowder, acting secretary-treasurer, submitted his annual report, as did all standing committees. The association will continue its sessions through Thursday.

FINAL RITES TODAY FOR GARRETT H. WARE

Funeral services for Garrett H. Ware, 58, for 25 years a railway mail clerk, who died Tuesday night at the residence, 152 Howard street, N. E., will be held Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock from the residence. Dean Thomas H. Johnston will officiate and interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Ware was a member of the St. Philip's cathedral and took an active part in its activities for many years. Surviving are his widow and a brother, Howell H. Ware, of San Francisco, Calif. Sam R. Greenberg in charge.

DEKALB SUPERIOR COURT IN SESSION

Decatur, Ga., June 7.—(Special).—The June term of DeKalb superior court opened this morning, with Judge John E. Hutchinson, of the Stone Mountain circuit, on the bench.

Organization of the grand jury resulted in the appointment of William Candler as foreman. In Judge Hutchinson's brief charge to the jury he placed particular emphasis upon the enforcement of laws governing the operation of automobiles, and particularly those sections dealing with the operation of automobiles by persons under the influence of liquor. Judge Hutchinson declared that these laws "should be enforced or repealed."

CALHOUN SUPERIOR COURT CONVENES

Arlington, Ga., June 7.—(Special).—With the convening of the June term of Calhoun superior court here Monday morning, Judge W. V. Custer, in his charge to the grand jury, strongly urged the body to give earnest consideration to the matter of recommending the establishment of the Ellis health law and the adoption of the Australian ballot system for the holding of elections in the county.

Judge Custer also suggested the employment of a county policeman to police the roads of the county as a means of protection for the women and children against reckless automobile drivers, as well as other law violators.

The grand jury was organized with H. E. Hammock, of Edison, as foreman, and J. D. Parker, of Edison, as clerk.

Women's New Hygiene

Ends disposal problem—Discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

THE old-time sanitary pad has been supplanted by a new and better way called Kotex.

It ends the embarrassment of laundry and disposal. You discard Kotex as easily as tissue.

It's five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads, and thus protects amazingly. You wear sheer gowns and gay frocks under the most trying conditions.

Also, deodorizes, and thus ends all fear of offending. 8 in 10 better-class women now use it. Great hospitals employ it. Doctors widely urge it.

Most stores have Kotex on counters wrapped in plain paper, ready to be picked up without even asking. Package contains 12. Be sure you get the genuine Kotex, for only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

Gifts for the Bride

FURNITURE OF CHARACTER

SEA OF MATRIMONY

JUNE, the month of brides and roses, brings about the question of an appropriate gift for her. Perhaps she already has in mind that shaded walnut bedroom suite, an occasional table, a spot chair or a new orthophonic Victrola. If you are in doubt about what to give, a visit through our store will settle this question satisfactorily.

You must not get the idea that our stock is higher priced than others. It is, however, very exclusive in design, and it is also true that we have the patronage of the most discriminating and particular people in the city. Lasting as it does a lifetime, it comes to have a sentimental value not to be found in ordinary furniture.

Sophy Tancred's Husbands

By ELIZABETH YORK MILLER.

INSTALLMENT LI.

A Terrible Accusation.

Clay turned suddenly and fled into the house, and then there was nothing left for Willie Mopet to do but go off down the back lane as he had said he would.

But it was great pity that he couldn't have seen Cecilia Bryant a moment later crying her eyes out in her bedroom, and calling herself such names as almost approximated the things he had thought of her.

"He said he would give me the keys of his heart—O, Willie, Willie! I am a beast to let him go off like that," Clara wailed to herself.

Then Mrs. Mopet's voice waited to her and she hastily dried her eyes and dabbed her nose with powder before going down.

The grim assurance of Piers Tancred that he could look after his wife put a little fear in Cristina. She had faith in Piers—a man, that one!—as well as admiration for his excessively masculine charm.

After Piers had gone that afternoon, Cristina sat in the garden admiring the check. She liked the look and feel of the thing. That Piers Tancred meant it as a deep insult to Alan was ignored by Cristina, perhaps not even realized. It was crossed and marked "acct. payee only," so no benefit could accrue to herself by retaining possession of it. He had said anything, but Cristina knew that Alan was short of money and probably this check would set him on his feet. In the circumstances many other women would have destroyed it or kept it pending a time more favorable to her own interest. Cristina, however, never dreamed of such a thing. Throw away so much money? O, no, indeed! But if she boldly asked Alan for it there was a chance that he might grant her request.

So she waited for him to come back from his walk with Giovanni, pondering a great deal over what she had said to the Signor Tancred and what he had said to her. Time passed and it began to grow dark. Lights sprang up in the Villa Mona and Cristina wondered what was happening down there. But finally she began to worry a little, and wonder why Alan and Giovanni had not come back.

It was very late, indeed, when they returned, Alan carrying the boy, who was exhausted, and Alan was tired, too, with good reason. They had got lost and met with an accident in an old quarry below Monte Nero, he said. He was covered with scratches and bruises, Giovanni had heard of that abandoned quarry, which was well known for a death trap. At the bottom lurked a deep pool partially hidden by a slight fringe of undergrowth and the sides were steep and slippery. Once you lost a foothold, you were bound to go slithering down into the pool, and that was what Giovanni had done, with his father after him. It was a mercy they were not both drowned.

A terrible thought struck Cristina as she clasped her whimpering little boy to her breast and hurried with him to the warm kitchen. Suppose Alan had come back without Giovanni? If such a thing had happened she would have believed the worst of him that a woman could ever possibly believe of her husband. Even now she wasn't so sure that Alan hadn't taken Giovanni to the old quarry with some such idea in his mind.

He followed her into the kitchen and while she undressed and fed the sleepy child, and attended to the little cut hand, she questioned him fiercely. Why did he go there when he had said they were going merely to Sasso? The quarry was at least three miles from Sasso.

Well, they hadn't gone to Sasso at all, Alan replied. They had left the road and descended into the valley on the other side.

But why? Cristina wanted to know.

Alan shrugged his shoulders. He was wet through, tired to death and inclined to be cross. Why does one do anything? Because the notion just took him—that was all.

Then Cristina put her terrible thought into words, accused him, and made him a present of his motive. He wanted, said Cristina, to get rid of the boy, just as he wanted to get rid of her. Both of them were in his way. He coveted for himself the money she had brought with her. But at the last moment his courage had failed, or else some of the woodcutters on Monte Nero had seen him push Giovanni down a slope into the pool, and so he had to rescue the child and pretend it was an accident. Thus did Cristina reconstruct an unthinkable crime.

Alan stared at her in silence. So much that was new and strange about Cristina had come to light recently. He had been living with a woman he did not know at all, and worse still, that woman was the mother of his son.

"You dare not deny it!" Cristina cried, her dark eyes blazing. Alan started at her and took him to his little bed.

Alan heated himself some coffee, and then feeling the discomfort of his damp garments changed into dry clothes. He ached in every part of him, but he was not sleepy and he was glad to think that Casa Poverina was to be left behind forever to night. It was a night of "stars and love," and there had been a dreadful moment at the slippery edge of that deep dank pool when he greatly feared that not only would Cristina never see Giovanni again, but that he himself would never see Sophy.

He had been down into the valley of the shadow together, he and little Giovanni, and it had taken every ounce of physical strength he possessed to save both of them.

Of course, he might have been able to keep them afloat by holding on to the fringe of the bushes all night, but no amount of calling and shouting would have brought them down. He had to help, since the men worked on the lumber falling had already gone back to camp. Perhaps even in the morning he might not have got heard or discovered. It seemed to Alan that he had performed an almost superhuman feat in getting himself and Giovanni safely out of the pool, but back again up the sheer, slippery side of the quarry. It had been an inch by inch business, but he had done it. He was quite sure it had been filled only yesterday. Could it be that Cristina—

After changing his clothes Alan returned to the kitchen for another cup of coffee and a cognac, and then he saw how little brandy there was in the decanter. He was quite sure it had been filled only yesterday. Could it be that Cristina—

But she followed him into the kitchen and seeing him holding the decanter and eyeing it distrustfully, she said: "The Signor Tancred was here this afternoon and I offered him some hospitality. He drank a great deal of the cognac."

Alan whirled upon her. "Tancred? What did he want?"

Alan's frown was black. "O, you need not look at me so!" exclaimed Cristina. "He came to see you, but as you were out he left a message—and also he left this. He does not wish the signora to sit to you any for the bust. He thinks you were not progressing fast enough. Perhaps if you can spare that money, you will give it to me."

Field Begins Narrowing In Opportunity Contest

BLACK BOTTOM AGAIN TAKES SPOTLIGHT

BY HERB MCUSKER.

The most hectic interpretation of the black bottom seen in these parts since the calves came home knocked the customers out of their seats at the Howard theater Tuesday night.

And 'twas none other than an O'Keefe high school girl as produced it.

Daunted not a bit by the glare of the footlights behind which she was making her first appearance, Miss Agatha Bryan, of 625 Highland avenue, tossed toes and shook shoulders until the audience leaped from the other contestants as winner of the second-flight program of the opportunity contest being staged at the Howard all this week in conjunction with The Constitution.

And because she triumphed, Miss Bryan will appear Saturday night in the finals to compete for the honor of appearing as "Miss Atlanta" in the New York Public Theater presentation of "Young America."

Miss Bonnie LeBeau, Atlanta foot-light favorite, and "Waddy" Wadsworth, animated orchestra leader at the Howard, both of whom are in charge of the contest, produced another hot list of entries Tuesday night. One of these, Miss Louise Cox, brunette who appeared in a black-and-orange costume that looked anything but amateurish, gave Miss Bryan a heated contest for her laurels and was beaten by a hand or two in the applause. She, too, hammered the boards with the black bottom.

Sprains Ankle.

A slightly sprained ankle was all that prevented Miss Betty Lowe from finishing in the money, but having favored the injured member, she was distanced at the last turn. Betty was in there, though.

The foot-light clambered over the footlights when Miss Harriet Willson essayed a selection on the piano—but it didn't drown out the applause which swept from the audience when the plucky entrant clung on to the competition of the number. There was a many piano players who might do well to borrow a bit of Miss Willson's.

DEGREES AWARDED TO 187 AT EMORY

Like the human mind, Emory university will expand always and become a tremendous force in the life of this great southland," said Dr. Stewart R. Roberts, Atlanta physician and alumni trustee of the university, in his baccalaureate address, "Emory College, After 25 Years," delivered before the 187 graduates, old grads and visitors Tuesday in the new university chapel. This address, the awarding of diplomas, medal prizes and honors terminated the commencement exercises.

It was just 25 years ago that Dr. Roberts was the orator of his class at the school where Tuesday he was the baccalaureate speaker. The speaker traced the growth of the college from the time he was a student when a few professors taught less than 300 students, to the present day when a faculty of 224 teach 2,057 students in 12 schools and divisions.

"The university," he said, "believes a fact is a fact, let it be as it may. The university stands for truth let it be what it may. No university, institution or state can long drop anchor in a quagmire of lies. It is the mission of bright minds that causes the spark of truth to scintillate and civilization to advance.

For Mind Freedom.

"There can be no advance unless there be freedom of mind. The mind of the ancient Greeks and the mind of the Elizabethan English were free to roam in search of truth and beauty—and what a harvest. The mind that lends itself to invention and research necessarily wanders free. The modern university stands for this freedom.

"It is to the glory of the Protestant church and to the south that the founders of the university wrote in its by-laws that Emory was designed to be a profoundly religious institution without being narrowly sectarian, and that 'Emory proposes to encourage freedom of thought as liberal as the limitations of truth itself.'

Dr. Roberts said Emory's administration has been maintained from the beginning free from politics on the one hand, and from fanaticism on the other."

DEGREES AWARDED TO 187 AT EMORY

Seven persons were slightly injured in a series of six automobile accidents Tuesday.

Miss Nellie Rivers, 18, of 1170 Donnelly avenue, was severely bruised about the legs when pinned between two automobiles early Tuesday afternoon at Whitehall and Hunter streets. The girl was crossing Whitehall when an automobile driven by Mrs. H. B. Poe, of Jacksonville, Fla., swung left into Hunter from Whitehall, striking and mauling her against a parked machine, police allege.

Miss Rivers was taken to Grady hospital for treatment, while Police reported that the accident occurred when the motorcycle on which they rode and an automobile driven by C. R. Barnett, of 1087 Virginia avenue, collided near the corner of Edgewood and Butler streets.

Patrolmen Simmons and Warren reported that Harmon attempted a left turn into Butler street from Edgewood when the accident occurred.

John Corley, 580 Windsor street, was slightly cut and bruised when the coupe he drove collided with a city car early Tuesday morning on the way at Pryor and Decatur streets. A case of drunk while operating an automobile was lodged against Corley by Patrolman Edelman.

Adeline Davis, 4 years old, 605 Hill street, and Louise Goodman, 14, of 415 Pulliam street, were treated at Grady hospital for minor lacerations and bruises suffered in automobile mishaps. No police record was made of their cases.

Susie Mae Lyon, a negroes living in the rear of 434 Central avenue, received severe bruises when knocked down by an automobile driven by O. B. Williams, of Lakewood heights, according to police reports. She ran suddenly into Pryor street from behind an automobile parked near the Georgia avenue intersection, witnesses said.

FARM HAND, GIRL, OF DOUGLASVILLE ARE SOUGHT HERE

Atlanta police were requested Tuesday to seek the whereabouts of Carl Swanger, farm hand, and Amanda Keaton, 14-year-old daughter of Dan Keaton, of Douglasville, Ga., both of whom disappeared from the Keaton farm during the past week.

Swanger, according to Douglasville authorities, is a married man who was employed on the Keaton farm. Recently he was arrested on a liquor charge and after gaining liberty on bond, disappeared, followed a day later by the girl, whom Swanger is believed to have supplied with funds.

The girl was said to have been traced as far as a point three miles northwest of Cedarburg, where she was lost. It is thought probable that the couple made for Tennessee.

The girl is described as being slender, well developed, with dark wavy hair, blue eyes and wearing black patent-strap slippers and brown felt hat.

Swanger's description is given as being a white man, of fair build, light red hair, freckles and long, thick lips.

Coughman, Atlanta; James Bickertstaff, Marianna, Fla.; James Britton, Aniston, Ala.; John Jones, Cartersville, Ala.; and Benjamin Boyd, Jr., Geneva, Ala.

SUPREME COURT PROGRESS GOOD

Washington, June 7.—(AP)—Chief Justice Taft reviewed the work of the supreme court today, confident that if the progress made during the term years, the cases in arrears will be wiped out and the court will catch up with its work.

"I am glad to say," the chief justice said in a statement, "that with the termination of this term I think there are very few cases remaining that came over from the period preceding the taking effect of the new law (enacted in 1925 and changing the jurisdiction of the court). It appears from the comparative statement of the business disposed of in the term running to June 1926, there were left on the docket undisposed of 451 cases and that in the term which closed yesterday the arrears had been reduced to 205. In other words, we seem to have gained 156 cases in the reduction of our arrears.

"It is true that last year the total number of cases on the docket was 1,309, and the cases disposed of were 888, while this year the number of cases on the docket was only 1,183, and the number of cases disposed of was 888. But I think we may say that of the cases disposed of in the 1926 term there were a number that seemed to swell the total that were really so similar in character and so disposed of by one decision that the cases which we had last year were not very many more than those which we have this year, and I am hoping that this reduction of 150 cases in the arrears shows a real advance. If it does we ought to be able to overcome our arrears in two years under the present law."

Rain at Tampa After Churches Unite in Prayer

Tampa, Fla., June 7.—(AP)—Rain, for which Tampa churches united in prayer Sunday, fell early tonight in a tropical downpour, lasting 45 minutes and bringing with it a drop in temperature of 16 degrees.

It was the first rain in any amount since April 28, and brought partial relief to parching shrubbery and crops in this section. Walter J. Bennett, director of the weather bureau, predicted more showers probably tomorrow.

The rain tonight brought about half an inch of precipitation and lasted from 7 to 7:45 o'clock. The temperature at 7 o'clock was 86 and in the next 45 minutes had dropped to 70. After that it climbed gradually again. The maximum temperature for the day was 92.

MIAMI DROUGHT STILL UNBROKEN.

Miami, Fla., June 7.—(United News).—There were no indications today of immediate rain to break the drought in south Florida, according to Richard Fray, government meteorologist.

Reports from Homestead and Redlands, rich truck farming and citrus grove districts south of Miami, said that all crops had been hit hard by the drought which has not been broken sufficiently for more than three months.

Large tomato crops have been reduced considerably and are blistering on the vines while even the leaves on fruit trees are dried and cracked.

LOVET HEARING SET FOR FRIDAY

Within the next few days hearing on application to extradite two men indicted here for murder in connection with the Bert Donaldson case will be held in Chicago and Little Rock, Ark., where they are being held, it was announced Tuesday by Solicitor John A. Boykin.

Assistant Solicitor General Ed A. Stephens leaves today for Little Rock to take part in the extradition hearing, while City Detective John C. Davis is in Chicago ready to present Georgia's claim for the custody of Abe Nissenbaum.

Nissenbaum, whose capture was recently effected in the Illinois city after an exciting chase through the Loop district, is fighting extradition on the plea that he was in Atlantic City on the night that Donaldson was murdered. Lovett has been held in Little Rock for some time and is also opposing extradition on the ground that he was in Muskegon, Mich., at the time of the murder.

The pair are among twelve men under indictment in the Donaldson case. Jack Vance is under sentence for his alleged part in the killing, while four of the twelve indicted are yet at large.
